SAYS CONTRIBUTION OF CANADA MUST BE INFINITELY GREATER

Hon. R. B. Hanson, After Visit to Britain, Calls For More Man Power and Increased Production of War Materials—States Firm Labor Policy Essential

TORONTO, Oct. 28 (CP). — The salvation of the British Empire demands immediately "an infinitely greater contribution than we have made" to the prosecution of the war in material resources and trained and equipped man power, Hon. R. B. Hanson, Conservative House leader, declared tonight in his first public address since his return from a recent twenty-three-day visit to Britain.

Answering the question, "What more can Canada do?" Mr. Hanson repeated a suggestion made in an interview today that the Dominion "can and must provide more man power" and create and train in Canada offensive shock troops under conditions of complete and perfect co-ordination with the air and naval arms.

Addressing the young men's section of the Toronto Board of Trade, Mr. Hanson said "super-trained man power is my first and main suggestion to Canada."

ISSUE OF MAN POWER

"This issue of man power must be faced realistically. Total effort requires total enlistment at once of all available man power, whatever system may be required to enlist them. At the bar of history, Canada will be judged by the man power in which she responds to the challenge to provide man power—not by the tenacity with which her Government clings to any particular system of recruiting . . .

PILOT TELLS ABOUT FIGHT

Was in Battle With Swarm Of Nazi Fighters—Two Shot Down

LONDON, Oct. 28 (CP)—A twenty-minute battle with a swarm of Messerschmitts, and a 300-mile flight across the North Sea with two members of his crew unconscious from wounds, were among experiences recounted in a broadcast by the sergeant pilot of a Beaufort torpedo bomber.

A torpedo had just been fired at a 7,000-ton ship off the coast of Norway when Charlie, the rear gunner, shouted: "Look out, skipper—Messerschmitts."

As the pilot saw tracer bullets going past his head, the gunner called out again: "Another one coming on, skipper."

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION

The Beaufort's guns were going all the time and Charlie reported that he thought he had shot down one Messerschmitt. A second later he shouted: "Here comes another from the beam," and then there was a terrific explosion and the rear gun stopped.

The observer crawled back to see what had happened and found Charlie had been hit. In the meantime Nazi planes kept coming in, sending shudders through the Beaufort with bursts from as close as twenty yards.

OPENS FIRE AGAIN

The pilot tossed his aircraft about, only twenty feet above the water, trying to put the fighters off their aim. Then Charlie regained consciousness, opened up again with his guns, and almost certainly got another Messerschmitt.

A few more bursts from the guns chased the remaining fighters away and the pilot set a course for home, and made it although he was unable to fly more than a few feet above the water because of the damage to his aircraft.

BOY IS KILLED IN COLLISION

Gordon L. Flaherty, Aged Nine, Struck by Motor Car in Saanich

Gordon Leonard Flaherty, aged nine years, 3268 Alder Street, Saanich, was killed yesterday afternoon as the result of a collision with a motor car at the corner of Cloverdale Avenue and Alder Street.

The boy, who resided with his uncle, E. Thorsteinson, was proceeding home on his bicycle from Cloverdale School at 3:15 o'clock along Cloverdale Avenue, and was turning into Alder Street when he collided with a car driven by Mrs. Margaret Goode, 3116 Washington Avenue.

Sergeant Eric Elwell and Constables Victor E. S. Smith and Cecil F. G. Pearce, of the Saanich police, attended and rushed young Flaherty in the Saanich ambulance to the Royal Jubilee Hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival by Dr. B. L. Newton, interne at the hospital.

Flaherty, who was born in Mission City, was staying at the home of his uncle for six weeks while going to school here. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond James Flaherty, reside at 100 Mile House, in the Cariboo. He is also survived by two brothers, Raymond William and Dennis Flaherty, with their parents in the Cariboo, and four uncles and one aunt.

Dr. E. C. Hart, the coroner, announced last night an inquest into the death would be held, probably on Thursday.

The remains are resting at Sands Mortuary, Limited, and announcement of funeral arrangements will be made later.

IRISH NEUTRALITY SEEN AS MENACE

Hanson Says German Diplomatic Mission in Dublin Now Upwards of 2,000

TORONTO, Oct. 28 (CP) — R. B. Hanson, Conservative House leader, in a speech here tonight pictured Eire as "the back-door menace" to Britain because of her neutrality, and said he had been told Germany's diplomatic mission in Dublin had risen from fifty to upwards of 2,000.

"Does that mean anything?" he asked. "Well, it does to the man on the street in Britain."

An invasion of Eire by Germany, a challenge to the very life of Britain, is not beyond the range of probability, Mr. Hanson said. "In fact, it is a very challenging possibility and constitutes a menace to the safety of Britain which cannot be underestimated."

GIVES HOSTAGES A "LAST CHANCE"

Suspension of 100-for-1 Reprisals In Occupied France Ordered By Hitler

PARIS, Oct. 28 (AP). — A "last chance" offer to spare the lives of 100 French hostages and release war prisoners whose families turn informer on the assassins of two Germans was announced tonight by General Otto von Stuelpnagel, commander of the German occupation forces.

Suspension of the "100-for-one" reprisal system for an indefinite period was ordered by Hitler, the general said, to give the French more time to deliver information on the six assassins.

One hundred French hostages have been slain—fifty at Nantes and fifty at Bordeaux.

Liberals Easily Win Nova Scotia General Election

Party Swept Back Into Office With Twenty-Five Members—Conservatives Elected to Four Seats and C.C.F to Three—One Minister And Opposition Leader Defeated

HALIFAX, Oct. 28 (CP).—Nova Scotians intrusted the keys to its Provincial House today to the Liberal party, again sweeping this eight-year-old Government into power at a general election and decisively turning back the bid of the Conservative opposition.

At the close of a mildly-contested campaign, unofficial returns late tonight from today's balloting for thirty seats indicated the return of twenty-three Liberals, with four Conservatives and three Co-operative Commonwealth Federation candidates assured of election.

The tide of votes coursing for Premier A. S. MacMillan and his Liberal slate swept out of the Legislature Opposition Leader L. W. Fraser, who was leading the Conservative forces into an election for the first time. The thirty-nine-year-old party chief ran third in the two-man riding of Cumberland, where a Liberal and a Conservative were elected.

ONE MINISTER DEFEATED

On the other hand, one of Mr. MacMillan's Cabinet members fell. Hon. L. D. Currie, Minister of Mines and Labor, lost out in his home constituency of Cape Breton East to a C.C.F. candidate, D. N. Brodie, by a heavy plurality.

But all other members of the Cabinet were returned, most of them by wide margins. The Premier was returned comfortably in Hants, with an edge of around 1,600 over N. D. Blanchard.

His new following in the Legislature gives him one more member than the party had at dissolution.

PLANS LAW TO CURB STRIKES

Roosevelt Hints at Steps to Prevent Walkouts in U.S. Defence Industries

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)—President Roosevelt, whose thrice-voiced plea to John L. Lewis has failed to end a strike of 53,000 Congress of Industrial Organization's coal miners, said today that he is considering new legislation to cope with defence strikes in general.

The President made this disclosure at a press conference, while on Capitol Hill a wave of feeling produced suggestions that troops be called out and that persons conducting strikes with "intent" to retard defence production be punished as saboteurs.

NO REPLY FROM LEWIS

The President said he had not received any reply from Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, with reference to his third appeal that the strike for a union shop in the so-called "captive" coal mines be called off pending negotiation on the issue of a union shop.

A conference is scheduled for tomorrow between Lewis and Myron C. Taylor, retired chairman of the United States Steel Corporation. Steel companies own most of the "captive mines" and use the coal for producing steel.

Without mentioning Lewis or any individual, Senator Josiah Bailey (Democrat, North Carolina) introduced legislation under which anyone conducting a strike with "intent" to retard defence production would be punishable as a saboteur. Penalties would range up to $10,000 fine and five years' imprisonment.

Australian Awarded Victoria Cross for Gallantry in Syria

Prime Minister Announces Award to Pte. J. H. Gordon—Outstanding Valor Shown by Two New Zealand Winners of V.C.

CANBERRA, Oct. 28 (AP)—Prime Minister John Curtin announced today the Victoria Cross had been awarded to Private J. H. Gordon, of West Australia, for conspicuous gallantry in the Syrian campaign.

Private Gordon single-handed attacked an enemy machine gun post which had been bringing an Australian attack to a standstill. Five Australians had been killed when Gordon braved the continuous fire, crept forward and then dashed into the heavily-fortified post, killing four of the machine-gunners with the bayonet and capturing the position.

Gordon's action demoralized the defenders and enabled the Australians to proceed. Through the night and the following day Gordon fought with equal gallantry.

He was the third Australian to re-

From Europe Day by Day—

THE TIMES, London

News and Comment on International Events selected from The Times daily and published in The Daily Colonist by special arrangement with The Vancouver Daily Province.

(Copyright, 1941, by Southam Co.)

LONDON, Oct. 28 (By Cable).—Intense fighting has been resumed all along the Russian front, but the gravest peril is in the South, where the Nazis are slowly gaining entrance into the Donets basin industrial area. Both sides are bringing up reinforcements in the Rostov-on-Don area. The Germans are still unable to penetrate into the Crimea.

Axis troops, says The Times' Stockholm correspondent, continue their attempts to batter at defences of the Perekop Isthmus, but Red troops hold fast and consider their positions impregnable. Rostov, unfortunately, is on the right bank of the River Don, and therefore, unprotected by a river barrier.

Even if the enemy captures it, Marshal Timoshenko ought to be able to hold part of the Don region long enough to enable him to reorganize fresh armies behind it. If, however, he fails to do this his whole future plan of campaign will be endangered. From the strategic viewpoint Rostov is highly important.

* * *

On the Moscow front there is no sign of any Russian weakening. From Kalinin north to Lake Ilmen indications of new battles are flaring up again, and if Red armies have really retaken Kholm this would represent a valuable gain for them.

The Leningrad garrison continues to counter-attack without respite, particularly in the Schlusselburg area, where the Germans have been on the defensive since the beginning of October. The Finns remain stationary on the Karelian Isthmus, as they declared they would do after capture of Petrozavodsk. No enemy progress towards Murmansk is reported, but it would be a mistake to conclude the Arctic Winter has yet stopped operations.

* * *

Editorially, The Times says from Sollum to Singapore there now stretches a continuous British front opposing the Axis at every point. Behind this front there is great concentration of force, including India, which is rapidly becoming its own arsenal.

There has been much talk of a Western European front to aid the Russians but, says The Times, it would be well to remember there are other fronts on which it may be more practicable and helpful to Russia to deploy the Empire's forces. In short, the Middle East front has been built up for attack as well as defence, and it contains the greatest potentialities for serving the common cause of both the British Empire and Russia.

* * *

The Times adds that the strength of Singapore, combined with United States' naval power in the Pacific, may yet restrain Japan from taking the step Hitler is urging upon her—that of attacking the Soviet Union's Far Eastern territory.

As for the North African front, although more than 100 Axis ships have been sunk while bringing enemy supplies to Libya, the struggle will be hard and grim, especially since much of the war material Britain needed there has been sent to Russia.

TRADE MISSION RETURNS HOME

Minister Says Another Party Should Visit Mexico and Central America

OTTAWA, Oct. 28 (CP)—A successful trade mission to South America should be followed as soon as possible by another to Mexico and Central America to seek further extension of Canadian trade, Trade Minister MacKinnon said today.

Returning to Ottawa after two and one-half months' travel—18,000 miles—the minister said the welcome given the Canadian mission in South America exceeded all expectations.

Mr. MacKinnon, a Prairie business man in private life, carried into his office for his press conference copies of new trade agreements with Ecuador, Chile, the Argentine and Brazil, major South American trading countries.

Nearly $40,000,000 annually is involved in the trade exchanges between Canada and these nations, Mr. MacKinnon said, and the new agreements would facilitate its increase.

FOUNDATION FOR FUTURE

Major results from the agreements were not expected immediately, but they laid the foundation for extension of business in the future, the minister said. Canada was not in a position to ship at once all the supplies of certain products required by South Americans because of the war situation, and this fact hampered to some extent immediate development.

"The rank and file of the South American people are overwhelmingly with the Allies and we saw nothing of the other side," Mr. MacKinnon said. "The South Americans we met showed a warm regard and a high opinion of Canada, and expressed their appreciation of our part in the war."

MAY BE FORCED TO LEAVE POST

Poor Health May Cause Lord Beaverbrook to Resign Supply Portfolio

LONDON, Oct. 28 (CP)—Resignation of Lord Beaverbrook from the Ministry of Supply for reasons of health was predicted today in political circles, but informed quarters said this would not mean his retirement from political life.

The Press Association lobby correspondent reported that the Canadian-born publisher has been suffering from asthma for several days and this has led to speculation whether Lord Beaverbrook will be able to retain his arduous post in the War Cabinet.

Well-informed sources pointed out Lord Beaverbrook always has suffered from asthma at this time of the year and normally took a cruise to a warmer climate, but that the war has made this impossible. These sources suggested that if he did resign he would return to some important post when the asthma attack is over.

He promised to serve as Minister of Supply only for a six-month period and still has two months to go. Some of Lord Beaverbrook's intimates feel that the journeys to the United States and Russia taxed him considerably and that it would be imposing an unwise strain on him if he insists on seeing his promised service through.

MANY NAZI THRUSTS REPULSED IN BATTLE FOR SOVIET CAPITAL

Heavy Fighting Reported in New Theatre of Struggle—Giant Battles Still Raging in West And Southwest Sectors—Soviet Airmen Inflict Heavy Losses on Invaders

Germans Claiming Fall of Southern Industrial City

LONDON, Oct. 29 (Wednesday) (AP).—The Moscow radio, in a broadcast heard here today, said Soviet troops were counter-attacking on a number of sectors of the Moscow front and that fighting in the Orel area was becoming more bitter.

All German attempts to cross the Nara and Oka Rivers south of Moscow have been repulsed, the radio said.

MOSCOW, Oct. 29 (Wednesday) (AP).—Heavy fighting in the Volokolamsk sector, about fifty-five miles northwest of Moscow and about midway between the Kalinin and Mozhaisk sectors, was reported early today by the Soviet Information Bureau in a broadcast over the Moscow radio.

This new theatre of fighting before the Soviet capital is on a rail line that curves up from the city and continues on west toward the Latvian border.

The early morning communique said that giant battles still raged in the Mozhaisk sector, fifty-seven miles to the west, and in the vicinity of Maloyaroslavets, sixty-five miles southwest, with many Nazi thrusts beaten back. Nazi losses were described as heavy.

SUPPORT FROM AIR

Soviet air formations supporting the ground forces were credited with destruction of forty-two German tanks, eighty-six armored cars, 430 trucks loaded with supplies and twenty field guns.

Twenty-six German planes were downed near Moscow in the last two days, it added, Monday's bag being placed at twenty.

On the Southern front, continued stubborn fighting was reported before Kharkov, the big Donets Basin industrial centre. (The Germans have claimed Kharkov's capture.)

LONDON, Oct. 29 (Wednesday) (CP).—The Moscow radio early today reported numerous German air attacks against Moscow yesterday afternoon and last night.

A majority of the attackers were declared dispersed by anti-aircraft fire and night fighters before reaching the city.

The announcement said high explosives were dropped by single planes on dwellings and claimed no military damage was suffered.

ARE DIGGING IN

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, Oct. 28 (AP).—The Germans were reported in military dispatches tonight to be building defence fortifications in some sectors of the Moscow front in an attempt to consolidate earlier advances which had been long blocked.

This turn to essentially defensive tactics was reported in front line accounts to Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, which stated the Nazis were digging not alone trench lines, but anti-tank obstacles as well against Russian counter-action.

The invaders, it was added, still were attempting flank attacks, but had made only negligible advances even there, while Russian counter-thrusts elsewhere had recaptured a number of settlements.

Meanwhile, German losses now were estimated by Soviet sources to have reached 4,000,000 men.

Dispatches from the Southern front said the Germans have been halted for several days on the approaches to Rostov, the big Don River port and gateway to the Caucasus. Heavy fighting continues there, it was added.

KHARKOV IN DANGER

Kharkov, another industrial centre some 200 miles north of Rostov, was declared in danger as a result of continuous pounding by German reinforcements brought up to the city's approaches. (The Germans have claimed the capture of Kharkov.)

In one sector before this city the Germans lost 3,500 men in a single day, the military dispatches said. In another Southern sector the Red Army was said to have buried the Germans out of one occupied point and routed two Nazi regiments.

Earlier, Russian counter-attacks

Cross Cirenaica on Foot After Escape From German Camp

CAIRO, Oct. 28 (AP).—Three British soldiers marched into a desert army headquarters yesterday and announced they had escaped from the German prison camp at Bengasi after a month's captivity. Two Rhodesians and an Englishman, they told how they had trekked across Cirenaica guided by a rough map torn out of a German newspaper and a cheap compass. They lived on food saved from their meagre camp rations for three weeks.

GREETED BY OPEN LIGHTS

British Bombers Raiding Nantes Given Bright Welcome by Inhabitants

LONDON, Oct. 28 (CP).—Two-motored Bristol Beaufort bombers were greeted by lights flashed from French homes when they roared in from the sea to raid Nantes at the mouth of the Loire River Sunday night, the Air Ministry said tonight.

Some residents of the port, where fifty hostages have been executed to atone for the slaying of a German officer and another fifty face similar deaths unless the slayers are discovered, threw open their doors and lit up their houses "as though blackout curtains had been torn aside from the windows," the ministry said.

HIGHLIGHT OF FORAYS

Announcement of the Nantes incident highlighted an otherwise routine account of continued daylight forays against Northern France. Overnight activity was restricted by bad weather to Coastal Command patrols of Channel and North Sea waters.

Lockheed Hudsons of the command attacked an Axis convoy off The Netherlands Coast, but details of the action were not immediately available, the ministry said.

During the day, R.A.F. fighters damaged barges and other targets in the Dunkerque area, shot down two German fighters in combat and destroyed another on the ground.

In the African theatre of war, South African Air Force planes straddled workshops and railway installations at Bengasi, Libya, on Monday in a follow-up to a Sunday

U.S. Marine Is Wounded By Japanese

PEIPING, China, Oct. 29 (Wednesday (AP).—The United States Embassy charged today the wounding of an American marine on sentry duty at the embassy early yesterday was the work of a Japanese, and a strong protest was presented Japanese authorities here.

The marine sustained flesh wounds in the right foot when the gunman, dressed in civilian clothes, alighted from a jinrikisha at the main embassy gate and fired four times. The American returned the fire, but the attacker escaped in the darkness.

KING AND QUEEN ARE GUESTS OF CHURCHILL

LONDON, Oct. 28 (CP).—The King and Queen were guests of Prime Minister and Mrs. Churchill for luncheon at No. 10 Downing Street, today, for the first time since Mr. Churchill took office.

IN MIDDLE EAST SERVICE

LONDON, Oct. 28 (CP). — The Czecho-Slovak Ministry of Information announced today that units of the Czecho-Slovak army are taking part in operations in the Middle East, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported tonight.

Difficulties Increase For Axis Forces on North African Front

Mediterranean Fleet Blasts to Pieces Artillery Positions of the Enemy—Royal Air Force And Fleet Air Arm Co-operate

ALEXANDRIA, Oct. 28 (AP).—Axis forces struggling to maintain communication lines and supply bases in North Africa are encountering mounting difficulties through frequent naval and air bombardments.

The Mediterranean fleet in three shellings between the Egyptian border and the Libyan ports of Tobruk and Bardia within a week must have handed German General Erwin Rommel's plans a severe setback.

PARTICULAR ATTENTION

Axis heavy artillery came in for particular attention and some positions were blasted to pieces by the big British naval guns. Powerful batteries which used to shell British defenders of besieged Tobruk were put out of commission.

Axis motor transport, troop centres and barracks were the main target of the fleet gunners.

Coupled with the sudden attacks from the sea are steadily increasing raids by the Fleet Air Arm and the R.A.F. The planes concentrate mostly on supply sources the naval guns fail to reach.

There is no doubt that Rommel is facing a task similar to that which confronted his Italian predecessor, Marshal Rodolfo Graziani; how to keep forward positions in top fighting trim, and at the same time protect communications under the pounding of bombs and shells.

TWELVE PERSONS BURNED TO DEATH

Others Feared Dead in Ruins of Frame Building in New Jersey

MONTCLAIR, N.J., Oct. 28 (AP).—The bodies of twelve negroes, nine of them children, were found tonight in the charred ruins of a two-and-a-half-story building, and Coroner George W. Olcott, Jr., said "we are still hunting for bodies."

Tongues of flame blocked all exits to the frame building and eight persons were seriously injured as they flung themselves from second-story windows.

Fire Chief John Graham said the blaze started after a lighted stove fell from the hands of Rudolph Durham as he carried it downstairs. Exploding as it struck, the stove sent flames spreading in every corner of the house, circling the occupants.

Worked-Out Quarries Made Into Enormous Ammunition Magazine

Nine Miles of Chambers Under Hundred Feet of Solid Rock Contain Thousands of Tons of Bombs and Shells

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Oct. 28 (CP).—Out of giant stone quarries 100 feet underground engineers have carved Britain's greatest ammunition storage depot—an arsenal described by one high-ranking officer as "the eighth wonder of the world."

It has nine miles of avenues and bays, stacked high with bombs, shell, boxes of TNT and cordite, and cases of smaller ammunition. Into this secret reservoir pour the products of munition factories of Britain, Canada and the United States.

They are stored here under 70 to 100 feet of rock, impervious to bombs, until they are required on the widespread fighting fronts.

ENORMOUS ARSENAL

This enormous arsenal is equipped with underground railways and sidings, connected directly to a mainline railway, miles of conveyor belts, underground power stations, emergency military headquarters, telephone exchange, barracks, canteens and an air-conditioning plant.

Long before the war broke out military authorities realized plans must be made to store huge quantities of explosives out of reach of bombs. This place was chosen after an exhaustive survey carried out in 1934-35.

The project started in 1936 with removal of 1,000,000 tons of rubble, leaving great underground galleries supported by pillars of stone. Acres of stone floor were laid in concrete. Pillars were reinforced with cement and a network of steel girders.

The cost was $90,000 an acre. In one section divided into walled-up compartments it ran to $225,000 an acre.

The arsenal is still being extended until it can store and handle 225,000 tons of ammunition.

In one of the several quarries forming the depot is a corridor 1,500 feet long. Narrow gauge rails run along it with trucks hauled by small Diesel locomotives or overhead pulley cables. This quarry is divided into ten areas, each containing 10,000 tons of ammunition. Fireproof steel doors separate the areas.

Smoking is strictly forbidden except in some underground rooms where no ammunition is stored. Girls on the telephone exchange are allowed a stove for making tea, but matches and tobacco must be taken down a shaft not used for ammunition.

A pillared concrete hall shortly will be opened as a restaurant. Off it are barracks for the men whose dual job is to defend the area and work in the ammunition depot. They have a canteen, a dining-room, a recreation room with table tennis, radio and books, and dormitories with double-tiered beds.

LIBERALS WIN IN NOVA SCOTIA

but cuts down its majority over the combined Opposition. As the House was dissolved, the line-up stood at twenty-two Liberals, five Conservatives and one C.C.F. Two seats were vacant.

ELECTION FOUR YEARS AGO

In the last general ecetion in 1937, the Liberals elected twenty-five members against five for the Conservatives in a straight party fight. The C.C.F. did not enter the picture until Douglas Macdonald was returned at a Cape Breton Centre by-election in 1939.

Making its first general election attempt to gain representation in the House, the young party provided one of the surprises of the contest. It elected half of the six candidates it entered.

Macdonald was re-endorsed in Cape Breton Centre and, in addition to Brodie's defeat of the Mines Minister, Don MacDonald, manager of a co-operative store, was sent into office in Cape Breton South. Here, one of the losers in a three-cornered contest was Capt. George Morrison, of the active army, who had ousted from office Opposition Leader Gordon S. Harrington, former Premier, in 1937.

In two other Cape Breton ridings and in Halifax North, the C.C.F. candidates bowed to Liberals.

FIRST VICTORY AS PREMIER

For the sixty-nine-year-old Premier, it was his first victory at the head of his party in a general election. Though a Cabinet member since 1933, he became head of the Government only last year when Premier Angus L. Macdonald went to Ottawa as Navy Minister.

Likewise, Opposition Leader Fraser was making his first bid for power at the head of the Conservatives. He took over the leadership just a year ago, and had sat through only one session of the Legislature.

For his brief term in the House, the Conservative chief was elected for Cumberland by acclamation at a by-election last Fall. In the previous general election, he had been defeated personally by the present Premier in Hants.

Mr. Fraser's group found all its support on the mainland of the province, with Cape Breton Island's eight seats going to the Government and the C.C.F.

The Conservatives were elected in Colchester, Cumberland and Pictou, all double ridings. F. M. Blois and George S. Dickey, members of the last House, carried the traditionally Conservative Colchester riding again without difficulty.

Ernest G. Irish, a Pictou wholesaler, managed to gain one of the seats in Pictou, both of which went to the Government four years ago. Attorney-General J. H. MacQuarrie held the other, leading Irish by a scant four votes.

ONE GAIN FROM LIBERALS

It was here that the Conservatives made their only gain from the Liberals. N. G. Munro, Liberal member of the last House, was defeated with W. T. Hayden, Conservative.

Besides the Attorney-General, the other Cabinet members were elected as follows:

Hon. J. Willie Comeau, minister without portfolio, in Digby; Industry Minister Harold Connolly, Halifax North; Highways Minister J. D. McKenzie, Annapolis; Agriculture Minister J. A. McDonald, Kings; Health Minister F. R. Davis, Lunenburg; Hon. Gordon Romkey, Speaker of the last Legislature, also was returned in Lunenburg.

All the re-elected members of the Government were accorded comfortable margins.

The Liberal landslide rolled at such a swift rate that The Canadian Press was enabled to flash the re-election of the Government at 7:57 p.m. A.S.T., less than two hours from the close of the polls.

SAYS CONTRIBUTION MUST BE GREATER

"History teaches us that victory depends upon a superior number of men, with superior training and superior equipment—and to Canada falls a large measure of the responsibility for creating such a force in this war."

Mr. Hanson reviewed his stay in Britain, told of his visits to Canadian airmen and soldiers and his talks with British Government leaders, including Prime Minister Churchill. Of the people of Britain, he had found them "simply marvellous" and with the watchword "No surrender."

GREATER PRODUCTION

The Conservative leader had other suggestions regarding the Dominion's war effort. He called for an expansion in production of munitions of war. "Perhaps this will spell longer hours for our workingmen, but, if so, I know they will accept them in the same spirit of patriotism and sacrifice as the British workingmen have."

Regarding foodstuffs for Britain, Mr. Hanson said Lord Woolton, British Food Minister, had impressed him with the necessity of supplementing the country's milk ration, "if the generation now being born and raised in Britain is to attain that standard of health and well-being so essential in the days of warfare and in the postwar period."

Concerning the occasion and purpose of the visit by Mr. Hanson and some of his colleagues, the Conservative House leader said they went at their own expense.

"I left Ottawa in June with a sense of frustration," he said.

"The Official Opposition represents a very much larger proportion of the people of Canada than our membership in the House of Commons indicates. We believe that we represent a majority of the armed forces of Canada. We further believe that the people across Canada whom we represent are exceedingly anxious that Canada should play a part in this conflict compatible with her position as the senior Dominion.

NOT CONSULTED ON POLICY

"In Parliament, the Opposition has been told in glowing terms of what was proposed to be done, but with respect to important matters we were not told anything more than was conveyed to the general public. At no time were we advised of prospective developments, nor consulted in the formulation of policy.

We had not been told those things which were essential for our guidance."

He was certain the experience and information obtained during the visit to Britain would prove "of inestimable value to us in our official positions and will enable us to make valuable and constructive contributions to the discussions of Canada's war effort, both in Parliament and in the country."

Mr. Hanson and his associates found the Canadian army in Britain at a high degree of efficiency and with morale good, but there was a certain degree of resentment, particularly among the men of the First Division, at what they consider their enforced inactivity.

NO ONE TO BLAME

No one was to blame for this, Mr. Hanson said. "The opportunity for active service has not, in the judgment of their superior officers, been afforded."

Canadian airmen had made "a great name" for themselves, said Mr. Hanson, describing visits to Canadian flyers in three different parts of England. He told also of meeting "a young townsman of my own" in the R.A.F. who had gone to England at his own expense after being turned down by the R.C.A.F. because of a lack of educational qualifications. Mr. Hanson did not name the flyer but said he had won the D.F.C. and risen to be a squadron leader.

"That is not an isolated case. It is typical of many a young Canadian who, in the years between 1937 and 1938, were denied the right of air training here in Canada. Oh, what a pity those in authority did not act then when the matter was first broached, instead of smugly refusing on the theory that to agree would be a violation of Canadian sovereignty. To have acted then would have produced at least 20,000 trained personnel for use overseas at the beginning of 1941."

BULWARK OF MOTHERLAND

He described the navy, going silently about its hazardous duties, as "positively the bulwark of the Motherland against invasion and against starvation, the great silent force which saved England after Dunkerque, and which today is patroling the seven seas, making it impossible for Hitler to cross the channel, the first line of defence for us in Canada and the United States."

Turning to labor problems, he spoke of British labor's decision to forego all strikes for the duration, and declared:

"What an object lesson for Canada! No traveling delegates from the C.I.O. in England. Labor leaders in England have accepted the task of helping to govern the country and win the war as part of their job. Mr. (Labor Minister) Bevin acts and speaks with authority.

"No timid governmental policy there. No appeasement, either for the employer or the employed."

Then, referring to the slow-down strike in the Cape Breton coal mines and the walkout at the Arvida, Que., aluminum plant, he exclaimed:

"What a contrast to Arvida or Cape Breton!"

NEEDS LABOR POLICY

Canada needed a labor policy "which all may understand." It should be arrived at after consultation with employers and employed "and then it should be mandatory for all concerned. The primary principle should be laid down that nothing should be allowed to interfere with war or other production.

"If," Mr. Hanson said, "in attaining that objective it becomes necessary to eject from this country certain paid emissaries from aboard, there should not be the slightest hesitation on the part of the authorities. Canadian labor is as loyal as British labor, but it has not had the situation so definitely and clearly impressed upon it. It thought it had been granted a bill of rights and then woke up to find it only a prior statement of principles—without legal effect."

WOULD NOT SUCCEED

An emphatic "No" was the answer to a question, often asked by himself and his colleagues, as to whether the threat of invasion had passed, Mr. Hanson said. And an equally emphatic "No" was the answer to the question would the invasion—expected this Winter, or next Spring or Summer—succeed.

"The spirit of the people is summed up in the last words which Mr. Churchill said to us: 'Better to die than be conquered.' No false peace, no compromise, nothing but the goal of freedom for themselves, their children, and their children's children.

"How we admired them! How we rejoiced in that great spirit of 'no surrender!' The spirit of their forefathers. No softening of the race is in evidence there—and there is no fear, no panic, no beating of the breast, no anguish, no vain regrets for past omissions, but a fierce, steadfast determination that the invader shall not pass."

WARSPITE MEN TO PAY VISIT

Fifty Members of Crew and Three Officers Due Here On November 29

Fifty men and three officers from H.M.S. Warspite will be entertained here on November 29 and 30, Mayor [illegible] announced yesterday afternoon. It is anticipated the party will include bandsmen, soccer players and a boxing team.

Mayor McGavin sent the following letter to Victoria and District Zone Council of the Canadian Legion in reply to an offer of veterans' branches to entertain visiting servicemen:

"The City Council is glad to accept your kind offer to look after any necessary entertainment of visiting men in uniform. It is presumed this also applies to the forces stationed in this area. We will be pleased to make suggestions from time to time regarding visiting naval personnel. We are not unmindful of the fact that, in the past, we have received excellent co-operation and financial assistance from the Naval Veterans Branch of the Canadian Legion.

"We have already invited a party from H.M.S. Warspite to visit Victoria for the week-end of November 29 to 30, and the invitation has been accepted. A programme has been arranged which entails an expenditure of some $400 to $600, and if you are prepared to take care of the arrangements and either amend them or add to them it will be greatly appreciated. We will turn the party over to you on arrival. If your representative will call at my office I will outline arrangements already suggested."

RAIDS OVER ITALY

Some Middle East raiders flew across to Italy, and a freight train rolling near Colrone was reported blown up. The railway station and a railway bridge near the town were hit also. No British planes were missing from these operations, it was added.

Professor Sees Selfishness as Anti-War Motive

Because they fear the loss of special interests and privileges, American capitalists and workers are reluctant to see their country enter the war, in the opinion of Professor J. A. Irving, University of British Columbia.

Guest speaker in the second lecture offered in the University Extension course, at Central Junior High School, Monday night, Professor Irving declined to predict when the United States would enter the war. The capitalists of that country, he said, were adverse to entry in the belief that the working classes would gain further social reforms; the workers, on the other hand, he said, feared such a move would impose added restrictions.

Professor Irving said that the American people were more critical of governmental functions than were the British. Science, he said, must be critical and constructive if it is to have value in a democracy.

The Lions Club will hear Dr. C. F. Amyot, of the Provincial Health Department, at its luncheon meeting Thursday in Spencer's dining-room. Dr. Amyot's subject will be "Health Service for Greater Victoria."

THEATRICAL PRODUCER IS FATALLY WOUNDED

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 (Wednesday) (AP). — William Ortmann, fifty-two-year-old Detroit theatrical producer, who was shot early yesterday morning as he witnessed a gun battle between a detective and a murder case suspect in a mid-Manhattan hotel, died early today.

The gunman, Abe Beitler, twenty-three, turned his gun on himself after the shooting and died several hours later, after police had captured his two companions.

Noted British News Agency to Be Owned As National Trust

Newspapers of Great Britain as Whole to Control Reuter's With Newspaper Proprietors' Association and Press Association

LONDON, Oct. 28 (CP).—Creation of a trust placing ownership of Reuter's in the hands of the British press as a whole and providing for preservation of the news agency's "integrity, independence and freedom from bias" at all times was announced tonight.

The joint announcement by the Press Association and the Newspaper Proprietors' Association carried the Government's approval of an arrangement which had been defended by Sir Roderick Jones, former chairman of Reuter's, as giving the agency "the sound understructure of a great news agency, ownership by the press of its country," an ideal which he said was exemplified by The Associated Press of America. The Canadian Press, Canada's national news-gathering agency, is organized on a co-operative basis similar to The Associated Press.

In the course of debate on the Reuter's deal in the House of Commons the Minister of Information, Brendan Bracken, had supported newspaper ownership of the agency as against either private ownership or Government trusteeship, and had specifically praised the structure of The Associated Press.

JOINT OWNERSHIP

Under the new arrangement, Reuter's is owned half by the Newspaper Proprietors' Association, the Trade Association of London Newspapers, and half by the Press Association, a co-operative news agency of provincial newspapers, which previously had full control of Reuter's.

Under the agreement, both parties pledge maintenance of a set of principles by which the new ownership is to be "regarded as in the nature of a trust rather than as an investment," and providing that Reuter's "shall at no time pass into the hands of any one group or faction." The trust is irrevocable for a minimum period of twenty-one years, and thereafter is not to be amended or dissolved without approval of the Lord Chief Justice.

The announcement follows:

"After discussion with the Chancellor of the Exchequer (Sir Kingsley Wood) and the Minister of Information, the following arrangements are announced:

SETS UP REUTER'S TRUST

"The Press Association, who were the sole holders of the shares of Reuter's, Limited, have decided in co-operation with the Newspaper Proprietors' Association, to enter into a common and equal partnership in Reuter's and set up a Reuter's Trust.

"To this end the Newspaper Proprietors' Association has purchased from the Press Association one-half of the capital of Reuter's. The effect of this is that Reuter's is now owned by the British Press as a whole.

"A declaration of trust has been signed by both parties setting forth principles which are to be maintained under the new ownership, which is regarded as in the nature of a trust rather than as an investment. In particular the parties have undertaken to use their best endeavors to insure:

"(a) That Reuter's shall at no time pass into the hands of any one interest, group or faction.

FREEDOM FROM BIAS

"(b) That its integrity, independence and freedom from bias shall at all times be fully preserved.

"(c) That its business shall be so administered that it shall supply an unbiased and reliable news service to British, Dominion, Colonial, foreign and other overseas newspapers and agencies with which it has or may hereafter have contracts.

"(d) That it shall be spared to expand, develop and adapt the business of Reuter's in order to maintain in every event its position as a leading world news agency.

"An equal number of trustees are being appointed by the Press Association and the Newspaper Proprietors' Association to carry out the above undertakings. An independent chairman of trustees is to be appointed by the Lord Chief Justice. The first trustees of the Reuter's Trust are:

TRUSTEES ARE NAMED

"Lord Rothermere, Lord Camrose, Lord Kemsley, Lord Southwood, W. T. Bailey.

"The management of the company will be a board of six directors representing the Press Association and the Newspaper Proprietors' Association. The directors of the new board are:

"Ralph Deakin (Times), W. Raymond Derwent (Westminster Press and Provincial Newspaper Ltd.), A. McLean Ewing (Glasgow Herald), W. J. Haley (Manchester Guardian and Evening News, Ltd.), H. N. Heywood (Allied Newspapers, Ltd.), and Robert J. Prew (Daily Mail).

"Provision has been made that the trust shall be irrevocable for a minimum period of twenty-one years and that thereafter it shall not be amended or dissolved unless the matter has been submitted to the Lord Chief Justice, and it shall not be dissolved unless he is satisfied by that reason of the circumstances then existing it is impracticable to secure the objects of the trust as set out above by continuing its operation in its present or any amended form."

The present Lord Chief Justice is Viscount Caldecote, the former Sir Thomas Inskip, K.C.

PROMINENT PUBLISHERS

Of the new trustees of Reuter's Lord Rothermere is publisher of The Daily Mail, Lord Camrose of The Daily Telegraph, Lord Kemsley is chairman of Allied Newspapers, Ltd.; Lord Southwood is publisher of The Daily Herald. Mr. Scott is chairman of The Manchester Guardian, Mr. Jeans is managing director of The Liverpool Post and Echo, Ltd.; Mr. Beckett is chairman of The Yorkshire Post, and Mr. Bailey managing director of Westminster Press, Ltd.

Samuel Storey, chairman of Reuter's and a Conservative Member of Parliament, tonight was reported to have relinquished his chairmanship and to have resigned from the consultative committee of The Press Association. He had opposed the original terms of the sale.

Reuter's is the principal British news-gathering agency, with offices and correspondents throughout the world. It is affiliated with the chief news agencies in almost every country.

The organization was founded by Baron Paul de Reuter, a German Jew, who transferred his activities to England in 1851, and became a British subject after failing in efforts to set up his agency in Paris.

Security Comes to Historic Land With Changing of Regime

Syria Settling Down Under Authority of Great Britain and Her Allies—Given Confidence by Promise Made by Churchill

LONDON, Oct. 28 (CP). — Ancient Syria, where Vichy France's collaboration with Germany brought the first clash between British and French last Summer, appears to be settling down under the Allied regime.

Security has come to the historic land on the easternmost shore of the Levantine Gulf—once the battleground of such world empires as Babylon, Egypt, Greece and Rome—after British action to prevent Axis use of the airfields and a Free French governor, Gen. Catroux, was installed. Today the British Government formally recognized the nation's independence.

A month of fighting, which started June 8, when Free French, Australian and Indian troops moved in, removed the definite Nazi threat and Prime Minister Churchill was able to tell the House of Commons in September what had been gained.

"We have no ambition in Syria," he told the House. "We do not seek to replace or supplant France or substitute British for French interests in any part of Syria. We are only in Syria in order to win the war."

A glance at the map indicates what he meant. Syria, larger than Canada's Maritime provinces, stands at the gateway to the Middle East oilfields. Now that Iran and Iraq are under Allied control the possibility of a strong Allied bulwark against the Axis is envisioned. Moreover good railway communication with Turkey provides a means of sending needed supplies to that country.

FONDNESS FOR COUNTRY

A land of 3,630,000 inhabitants Syria was French-mandated territory under the League of Nations since the last war and Frenchmen always had a fondness for this country so closely associated with Napoleon's Eastern activities. The French carved it into four republics—similar to its territorial make-up when Syria was part of the Ottoman Empire—with Lebanon and Syria the most important.

Following the collapse of France, however, the economic situation became desperate. Food was scarce and the gasoline situation acute because of the British blockade. Acted on by such Hitler missionaries as Dr. Gronau and Quislings like the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, whom the British had expelled from Palestine, the people in this cradle of Arab nationalism were restless.

RIOTS OVER BREAD

Consequences of the supply crisis held repercussions for the Catroux regime. There were riots in Hama and Homs in September over a temporary bread shortage. Faulty distribution of supplies by Syrian and Lebanese authorities, rather than scarcity of wheat in this essentially agricultural country was believed the main cause for the shortage.

Moderate politicians accepted the proclamation of Syrian independence, but there has been criticism from some sources over Catroux' nomination of Sheikh Taj Addin, who resigned out of dissatisfaction with the former French regime, to form a Government, and said this might have brought collaboration with the Nationalist bloc. Catroux' plans for Lebanon still have to be revealed, but are believed to be similar.

Meantime Syrians have Mr. Churchill's word that there must be no question of mere substitution of Free French for Vichy French interest.

"The Syrian people are to come back into their own," he promised.

APPLE CAMPAIGN IS SUCCESS HERE

Kiwanis Club Expects to Contribute More Than $1,000 to Lord Mayor's Fund

Returns from the Kiwanis apple sales campaign are almost complete and it is expected a cheque for more than $1,000 will soon be mailed to the Lord Mayor's Fund, Glenn Hope, committee chairman, told members at their luncheon meeting yesterday in the Empress Hotel. In their drive the Kiwanians sold two carloads of Okanagan apples.

Tuberculosis seals were distributed to the members, each receiving 500. These will be mailed to some 8,000 Victoria residents about November 18, preferably to those who have supported the campaign in former years. As in the past, the club hopes to raise $4,000 for the rehabilitation of tuberculosis patients.

The Kiwanis Club works with the Canadian Tuberculosis Association.

Members were entertained by pupils of Miss Nellie Small who offered a dance routine "Memories of Holland," with Miss Enid Middleton as soloist.

CONCERT PARTY WILL ENTERTAIN R.A.F. MEN

On Thursday, October 30, the "Arf a Mo'" concert party, sponsored by the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada, will entertain men of the Royal Air Force at Patricia Bay. The troupe will leave its headquarters, 1001 Wharf Street, at 7 p.m. sharp, transportation having been arranged.

Attractions embodied in the new show include a thirteen-piece band, sound pictures in Technicolor, and unique lighting effects.

SHELLING LENINGRAD

BERLIN, Oct. 28 (AP) — German shelling of besieged Leningrad, an apparent prelude to a tank and infantry assault, and repulse of Soviet counter-attacks on the Moscow front were reported tonight after the High Command claimed the fall of Kramatorsk, key Southern Soviet industrial city.

Clouds of smoke were said to be hanging over Leningrad as German batteries fired on Soviet defences outside that city and factories and food depots within. Military quarters said the bombardment began twenty-four hours ago.

Other units claimed direct hits on a Russian naval airdrome, the destruction of a large hangar, and the silencing of one fort's batteries at Kronstadt, big Red Fleet base west of Leningrad.

The High Command, which said the capture of Kramatorsk, 100 miles southeast of Kharkov in the Donets basin, meant the loss to Russia of the Stalin plant, one "of its biggest tank factories," made no mention of the Moscow front.

But a D.N.B. dispatch said a Russian tank and infantry unit had collided on that front with a German infantry company in a lenhour battle.

In a Northern sector one German army corps claimed the capture of 12,500 Russians in an eleven-day fight over forest and swamp areas.

LOSE 60 PER CENT

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, Oct. 28 (Delayed) (AP)—Dispatches from Moscow declared today German forces hammering at the approaches to the Soviet capital had lost 60 per cent of their fighting strength in the past few days, and that it had become apparent that they would be unable to take the city.

TOO MUCH PROPAGANDA

There is such a thing as a surfeit of propaganda, when reiteration reaches a point discreditable to all ears. News broadcasts in this country, and in Great Britain, are showing a growing tendency to fill out their fifteen-minute periods to a greater extent with what men say than with what is done, or what happens. This may be partly accounted for by the brevity of official communiques which leave so much unsaid, and which, as they emanate from the warring capitals, are irreconcible in the rival claims made. It is due, too, to the character of the censorship imposed. These are excuses, if such are needed, for so much time being expended on propaganda.

There is a notable case in point. The stress now being laid on what will be done some time in the future in sending aid to Russia persists in news broadcasts on this continent and in Great Britain. The story is told of what is being done, but so far, due to geographical difficulties and limitations in production, the aid being given is on a small scale. No one doubts that in the course of time, provided the shipping remains available and can be diverted from existing routes, considerable quantities of military materials will be dispatched to the assistance of the hardly pressed Russians. That is taken for granted, and it should not be necessary to emphasize it so often. The comfort the Russians receive is in the actual supplies reaching them. It is now that they want those supplies. The disturbing factor in the situation is that they are losing their own sources of production at a much faster rate than the output which they once enjoyed can be replaced by products being shipped to their aid by Great Britain and the United States.

It would be well if the propaganda proclaiming the aid that is being sent to the Russians, and the aid that will be sent, should be toned down; at least to the extent of adhering strictly to the truth of the ratio of that aid to the material equipment that has been lost, and is being lost, by the armies of the Soviets. That is the test in a war such as that on the Eastern Front. There are limits, definite limits, to what the democracies can do for Russia. There is the limit of merchant tonnage available. There is the limit imposed by the fact that Great Britain cannot denude herself of war material to the extent of inviting an attempted invasion. There is the limit of the hampering influence of recurrent strikes in the United States. These are three considerations that cannot be overlooked. Each of them restricts what can be done, and knowledge that this is the case tends to detract from the emphasis placed on the unceasing propaganda that goes on about what the democracies are doing to buttress resistance on the Eastern Front.

These considerations are also factors that explain why Great Britain is unlikely to attempt an invasion of the Continent at this time, despite whatever effect it would have in distracting German attention from the Russian campaign. What Great Britain will in every probability do is to send an expeditionary force to Russia to aid that country in the defence of the Caucasus now threatened by the presence of the Germans at Kharkov and Rostov. It is there that the most direct aid can be given to the Soviets; it is there, too, that Great Britain can meet whatever threat would develop to her forces in Iran, Irak, Palestine, and Transjordania, in the event of the enemy occupying the Caucasian territory. There is no doubt that a prime objective of the Germans in their Russian campaign is seizure of the Caucasian oilfields. They need the fuel for the pursuit of further conquests. If Great Britain is to aid Russia by direct military co-operation by her land forces, it is in the Caucasus that this may be done with the greatest hope of success.

FOR OVERSEAS SERVICE

Mr. David Lloyd George, who in the last war occupied somewhat the same position in British estimation that Mr. Winston Churchill enjoys today, said after the struggle that it was the critics who had won the victory. Now, as then, there is constant critical analysis of the war effort in Great Britain, far more so than there is by the Press in this country of what is being done, or left undone, by Ottawa. This attitude is in line with the wishes of the British people, and it is noteworthy that one of the first statements made by Mr. Brendan Bracken, when he became Minister of Information, was that "a yes Press" was a positive danger to good government.

When conscription for overseas service is introduced in this country the step will be taken because of the insistence on the inevitability of such a course by so many of the newspapers of the Dominion. By some newspapers the participation of Canada to the utmost of her strength has been advocated since the outbreak of the War. That goal has not yet been reached. It can never be reached while the voluntary system prevails. The continuation of that system is temporising with a situation that is the most serious with which the country has ever been confronted. For several weeks past most of the Military Districts in the Dominion have ceased to issue figures on recruiting. Why? Simply because those figures would show the falling off there has been in Canada's war effort in the provision of men ultimately destined for the fighting fronts.

It is a strange commentary on the official attitude at Ottawa that the people should not be told the truth and admission made that efforts to secure enough recruits for existing military units are not meeting with success. There are some hints that there is to be a new national campaign (the second during the course of the War) to secure volunteers for the Canadian Active Service Force. The suggestion is that it should be a piecemeal campaign, commencing in the West and moving eastwards. All will hope that, whatever the reason for such a process, it will command success, but in connection with whatever is to be done in the way of propaganda the Government should lay before the people the exact situation; not merely the number of recruits required but the rate of recruiting that has prevailed since the conclusion of the national campaign last Summer. Moreover, it should be stated specifically what are the monthly requirements for existing units, what is the state of strength of the Sixth Division, and what other units continue to fall short of requirements.

There is no warrant in the experiences of recent months to suppose that voluntary enlistment will meet the commitments of the Government, and those committents in the way of military man-power are too limited in view of the situation as it is developing. It is not six, but sixteen, divisions that Canada should have ready to take the field. To raise these conscription is essential, as it is essential now to provide reinforcements and replacements for existing units, the more especially when the time comes when this country's Active Service Force will be engaged in battle.

PROBING THE CAUSES

The Winnipeg Free Press probably goes as close as any newspaper outside of British Columbia in explaining the causes of the indefinite result of the recent provincial election here. It says: "The Pattullo Government did not help itself by asking the electors to vote for it in confirmation of its policies of co-operation with the Dominion Government in the war effort. There was in this a suggestion that the opposition parties were less disposed to such co-operation, which quite properly led to protests. Also, by putting forward this claim, the Government left itself open to the reminder that its record of co-operation with the Dominion Government was not without flaws. Mr. Pattullo's contribution to the conference upon Dominion-Provincial Relations last January did not at the time carry the undivided support of his own party, let alone the general approval of the people of British Columbia; and it is not far-fetched to attribute some of the loss of support he suffered to this circumstance."

The Liberal Party, undoubtedly, from the standpoint of its own political fortunes erred in attempting to make out that it was the one, predestined as it were, to co-operate in war effort. Not only did it make a mistake in introducing the subject of the war in any sense when issues were purely parochial, but it erred as well in attempting to link its destiny indissolubly with that of the Liberal Government at Ottawa which is the subject of a sustained barrage of criticism because it has failed to introduce conscription for overseas service, and because of some other shortcomings in omitting to bring the country into the war to the utmost of its strength. Moreover, as The Free Press notes, and with unanswerable logic, there was a definite flaw in an election appeal which in its claim for co-operation between Liberals in this province and Liberals as represented at Ottawa conveniently forgot the failure of the conference on Dominion-Provincial Relations, and the cause of that failure.

FORTUNE FORBID

Fortune forbid the accomplishment! He swears,
God willing or not willing, he will scale
The wall and sack the city. . . . For a sign
He bears a man unarmed, with lighted brand
For single weapon, whose announcement runs
In golden letters, "I will burn your town."
—Aeschylus: "Seven Against Thebes"

Were not this desire of fame very strong, the difficulty of obtaining it, and the danger of losing it when obtained, would be sufficient to deter a man from so vain a pursuit.—Addison.

Well for the drones of the social hive that there are bees of an industrious turn, willing, for an infinitesimal share of the honey, to undertake the labor of its fabrication.—Hood.

I consider that it is on instruction and education that the future security and direction of the destiny of every nation chiefly and fundamentally rest.—Kossuth.

Note and Comment

By SANDHAM GRAVES

This, probably, is no time for it, but what a fascinating study the geography of the mind could be. Move across Canada from one coast to the other, and by gradual and almost unnoticed changes, the Western mode of thought becomes Maritime thought. It is very marked in the daily papers that flood the exchange desk; nor can it be explained entirely on any other basis than that of geography.

* * *

In the newspapers, printed at one to two-hundred-mile intervals, there is a noticeable hiatus; a skip or a jump in the manner in which men, resident at different points, will approach the same subject. Could you make the same journey on foot, however, it would be difficult to trace the intellectual borders of this land; between province and province, west, centre or east. Like a film reel that is run slowly, the jumps show up in newsprint; so that one may identify the province, if not also the city, from between lines on the printed page.

* * *

There is nothing new or original in the thought. Everyone who has ever traveled has sensed it. Leave the borders of your own land for another country, and the change amounts to a physical shock. Cross an ocean in peace-time, and you will find yourself in the midst of another culture, based, in part, on the geography of that land. But only in part, because a great many elements make up the ultimate complexity of thought.

* * *

Times of national emergency help to override the geography of thought; and people thousands of miles apart will have the same views, based for the most part on moral issues. But, even then, the geography of thought will be present; and men will think, consciously or otherwise, from the standpoint that colors so much of their ordinary thought, locality. To the Westerner most things lie to the east.

* * *

It would be absurd to say that all people living on the same longitude will think alike, or that an occidental living in the Orient will assume Oriental ways. There is plenty of proof to the contrary. It would be just as futile, however, to say that place had no portion in the mind. It has, and a much larger share than it is generally given credit for. Concede it or not, there is a geography of the mind.

* * *

In a country as large as Canada, the geography of the mind imposes real barriers to a singleness of national thought. It presents a hill that must be climbed before we may reach the plains of national unity. Time, in its ordinary course, will no doubt do much to merge our East and our West and bring them into fair balance with the centre. The stress of the present day is producing some strides in that direction. But the process at best is a slow one. We still think: "What of British Columbia?"; when, perhaps, the thought should be: "What of Canada?"

* * *

It is, of course, a phase of pioneering. We still hardly know our own land. Historically speaking, there has scarcely been time. As one speaker said in the last election, Canada went from Union into a world slump; from that into a war, and another slump; then into a brief period of prosperity and expansion; then another war, and a slump of some twenty years' duration, followed by the granddaddy of all wars, the world conflict. We have scarcely caught our breath yet, in all these sudden changes. But we shall, depend upon it. The next advance, when it comes, will carry Canada forward on to the plains of unity; a nation young, strong and united—and pioneering still.

Was His Face Red?

During the week-end newspapers across the border carried a humorous account concerning an aviator in the United States Army Air Corps advanced flying school at Victoria, Texas. Apparently the recruit had recently been transferred to Victoria, and thought the best way to find a companion would be to enclose a polite note in his laundry offering to meet the recipient on Friday and escort her to a dance. He scrawled a few lines with his name and address and tucked the note into one of his socks with high hopes of an interesting week-end on leave. Back came the following reply: "Dear Freddy, I received your cute note tucked away in your socks. Would just love to go dancing with you Friday night, but expect Pete Stanaslouse." The flyer had John Stanaslouse." The flyer had not been informed by his companions that all washing from the school was done by the quartermaster corps . . . During the annual meeting of Washington State Taxpayers' Association at Seattle last week delegates asked for cuts in state and local expenditures, conservation of surplus revenues, and a ban on new taxes during the emergency. Somebody should make similar requests to our Provincial Government. After all, we are at war . . . A recent news item from London stated that a man had been sentenced to serve six weeks in prison for stealing twenty-seven eggs, and another fined $46 for wasting rice. We should like to see life prison terms imposed in Canada for food profiteering . . . The land of the rising sun must be feeling the pinch of war. Orders have been given to collect millions of pounds of used tea leaves for use as animal fodder.—G.B.

Glancing Over Sport

I noticed none of the local golf clubs would take the Vic Ghezzi exhibition match. Vic demanded $200 for a display any day from Monday to Friday, and on a Saturday or a Sunday he wanted $30 more. Although a mighty fine shotmaker, Ghezzi's tour of the Northwest cities was none too successful . . . If the Nanaimo Clippers secure the services of Dave MacKay, young Edmonton star who played with the Chicago Black Hawks last season in the National Hockey League, their team will certainly be bolstered on the defence. MacKay was in touch with Victoria's manager, Ivan Temple, but finally wound up in the Coal City. Paul Thompson, manager and coach of the Hawks, told me not so very long ago that MacKay has the makings of another Eddie Shore . . . Sorry to hear that John Caven has resigned as secretary of the Uplands Golf Club after sixteen years of faithful service. John more than played "ball" with the sport writers, and we hope his successor continues to do so . . . It looks as if the Victoria Machinery Depot football team is the one to beat this season in the senior circuit. They have a sound club from goal-tender to the wings, and once they get to know each other's system of play they will be even tougher than ever . . . Football fans are turning out at Bullen Park in bigger numbers than ever before. If the league officials continue to stage their games on Sunday they will wind up the schedule out of the red. In the last two Sundays more than 1,300 spectators headed for the Esquimalt pitch.—J.D.

PROTESTS EXECUTIONS

HAVANA, Oct. 28 (AP).—The Cuban House of Representatives adopted a resolution last night protesting the execution of hostages in France and other German-occupied countries. The resolution urges the Cuban Senate and all other legislative bodies in the Western Hemisphere to take similar action.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily Colonist of October 29, 1891)

What Steamer?—A dispatch dated Port Townsend, October 27, announced that the preceding day a small steamer with a cargo of Chinese was en route for that place. Later it was stated that about sixteen had been landed near Point Wilson, of whom altogether thirteen were captured. The telegram states that one or two, who spoke English, admitted that they came across from Victoria. Eleven of them said they came over in a sloop manned by two men.

A Dangerous Water Trough—The water trough at the corner of Yates and Wharf Streets is a danger and a disgrace. It has done good service in its day, but that day is passed. The trough leaks badly, and for weeks past has been almost empty. One of the posts is rotted and has fallen away, so that even were there water in the tank it would be dangerous for horses to approach it. Something should be done, and that at once, to put it in order.

Queen of the Coast—During the past month or so, the tug Lorne, with Capt. Christensen in command, has proved herself the fastest tow boat on the Pacific Coast. On Tuesday last she towed the ship Queen Victoria, which registers 1,700 tons, from Tacoma to Cape Flattery in seventeen hours, thus beating the tug Tyhee's record by one hour.

AN APPEAL

Sir,—Some time ago I appealed on behalf of the Royal Air Force boys at Patricia Bay for golf clubs and the response was very generous, and we wish to thank the donors for their generosity.

The Royal Air Force boys have a good deal of talent and feel that they could organize an orchestra or a band if they had the necessary instruments. They have no funds from which they could purchase instruments, and if any person has an instrument which could be donated or loaned it would serve a useful purpose. In case of any person loaning an instrument for the duration of the war our Y.M.C.A. organization would undertake to return the instrument after it has served its purpose.

Instruments might be left at the local Y.M.C.A. for this purpose.

FREE RIDES FOR FORCES

Sir,—May I request that you allow your valuable space to be used to announce that there are now available free of charge at the Red Cross Superfluities Store a supply of pale blue windscreen stickers reading "Army, Navy, and Air Force; Give a Lift Club."

The only qualification required to become a member of this club is good will and the wish to extend the courtesy of a lift to those who are preparing to defend us and make possible the continued use of the automobile in which we may be able to offer the small courtesy of a lift. There is no charge either for membership or for the stickers which have been donated for this purpose to the Red Cross Superfluities Store.

A. H. PEASE,
Manager, Superfluities Store, 1220 Government Street, Victoria, B.C., October 25, 1941.

POLITICAL PROCRASTINATION

Sir,—Another provincial election has been held, and the people have spoken in the usual divided-interest methods of our silent vote, but with a decided verdict against certain aspects of the administration of the Government in office.

During the campaign all parties were proclaiming their eagerness to do all things possible to forward the war effort, as time was short and precious, and our fight for democracy the most vital concern we had.

Now the people naturally expect that the newly-elected representatives would be all out to get started on the task of carrying into effect the wishes of the people who had just elected them, but the reaction does not seem to work along those lines at all.

The Legislature is not even going to assemble for quite a long time, and the brain power of our newly set up state administration machine is centred on how to circumvent the expressed wish of the electorate into channels of party advantage and policies in direct hostility to election results. Their reasons given for bringing on an election at this time are forgotten, the wishes of the people are forgotten, the fundamental principles of true democracy are forgotten, the best interests of the country are placed in abatement, and the old game of party politics goes on as ever, as if there was no national danger of invasion, no crisis of war, no fear of bankruptcy.

Outside of the routine of administration and parliamentary activity, nothing helpful will be undertaken, no new ventures in a strong wave of prepared plans for the future, no attempts made to populate idle country, or prepare for returning soldiers. There will be much fine talk, of course, grand displays of repartee in debates, but over all shall hang that old policy—procrastinate—better to do nothing unusual for the country and keep your party in office than risk some new venture for the good of the country, that might fail and put your party out of office.

This brand of Canadian political character in our leaders and heelers is sure leading the nation to——. Fill it in yourself, readers, but it is most serious today.

JAMES MOYES.
Cobble Hill, B.C., October 27, 1941.

RUSSIANS AS ALLIES

Sir,—Your correspondent, Francis Walton, asks why we are suddenly become the friends and brothers of the Russians, who were so recently our opponents. Christian charity on our part is responsible for our sympathy for the Russians as distinct from Soviets.

The Stalin regime has no love for Christians and has done its utmost to destroy the name of God in Russia. Churches have been destroyed or converted to museums of hatred and blasphemy, hundreds of thousands of Christians are in prison camps, and whole communities have been destroyed by the fanatical hatred.

Common sense, however, tells us that the enemies of Christ will not prevail and that, in spite of "dungeon, fire and sword" there still exists in the hearts of many Russians a belief in God. It is for the sake of these that Christians in other lands would help the Russian people, hoping and believing that out of the wilderness of the past twenty years this valiant people would once more emerge to worship their God in peace.

Between the two systems, the Nazi and the Communist, there is little to choose. They are both sworn enemies of Christianity and have both shed in profusion the blood of Christians; they are both tyrannies and allow no liberty to their people.

It was indeed pathetic to see of late the attempt to convert Stalin to Christianity. Stalin is not so simple as not to see that toleration would mean the end of himself and his regime. "No man can serve two masters." His reply was somewhat brutal. "There is no church in the Soviets. How can it be persecuted?" We knew the grim significance. During the short occupation of the Soviets in Poland 3,700 priests were sent to Siberia and 400,000 Catholic Poles were driven into exile. No one would attempt such a farce as to say that the Soviets were friends of liberty of conscience.

Honest Christians do not profess any inordinate love for either of these. They are sympathetic to the Russian people, but are quite sure that if the Soviet Government succeeded in driving out the Nazis, they would not even thank us for our help, much less return it in our need. It would not be reasonable to expect it. Circumstances alone have made them our allies, and we expect that when these change in favor of the Stalin regime the alliance will cease. We have no illusions on this point. Our benighted Communists and atheists, of which we have many, are responsible for the profuse expressions of affection for the Soviet.

History is not complete and what lies in the future is known only to God. Who says still "Vengeance is mine, I will repay!" and there is an accent on "mine" and upon "I."

So we may take heart of grace that in spite of the darkness of this night of horrors, the dawn of victory is none the less sure.

The time used is Pacific Standard for the 120th Meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the table, the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

To find the depth of water on the sill at the Esquimalt Drydock at any tide, add 30 feet to the height of high water as above given.

LAST WEDNESDAY'S QUESTIONS

Question 4—Both sides vulnerable. The bidding proceeds:

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	2 ♦	?

You are South, and hold:

♠ 10 8 7 6 5 3 2 ♥ 7 ♦ Q 5 4 ♣ 10 5

What call do you make?

Answer—Pass. Despite your seven card suit your hand is far too weak for a free bid. Your singleton in partner's suit is a danger spot. Partner is likely to bid three of four hearts over a two spade bid by you, and you then will be in trouble. Only in rare cases should free bids be made on distribution alone. (Ten points demerit for two spades; 25 points demerit for four spades; 50 points demerit for any other call.)

Question 5—Both sides vulnerable. The bidding proceeds:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ♦	?

You are South, and hold:

♠ 8 6 5 4 2 ♥ 7 3 2 ♦ 5 4 ♣ Q 8 6

What call do you make?

Answer—Pass. Your five trumps and one queen do not justify a free raise, which, like every other free bid, requires something besides distribution. If you give such a raise, partner will rightly read you for greater strength and may be influenced to contract for a game, or even a slam, that will be severely punished. (Ten points demerit for two spades; 25 points demerit for four spades; 50 points demerit for any other bid.)

West selected an unfortunate opening for his team, namely, the spade nine. East played the king, and declarer won. Now obviously since the spade nine had made "equals" of declarer's ten and eight, trumps could have been drawn and the hand laid down, merely by the concession of a spade trick.

Declarer, however, either was blinded to the fact or had some vague idea of making an extra trick. At any rate, after winning with the spade ace he laid down the queen, then led a third spade with the intention of ruffing in dummy. West "beat him to it" by ruffing in with the heart six. After that declarer's contract was in the limbo of lost hopes. West returned a trump and still had one left with which to prevent the ruffing of declarer's losing spade in dummy.

While North (the poor dummy) sat speechless with disgust, South had the gall to bewail his hard luck in finding a 5-2 spade break.

CAUGHT ENEMY BY SURPRISE

Royal Navy Ship Sank Nazi Supply Vessel and Possibly Submarine

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Oct. 28 (CP).—A Royal Navy warship, accompanying another warship which brought a detachment of Royal Canadian Engineers to England from Gibraltar, sank a German supply ship and possibly a submarine in the Atlantic during the voyage.

The story was told to The Canadian Press in the R.C.E. camps here by Lieut. J. B. Kirk, of Noranda, Que., and Vancouver, who was in charge of the returning sappers.

"The warship caught the enemy by surprise and opened fire," said Lieut. Kirk. "One salvo finished off the German ship and it blew up. A submarine was refueling alongside it and dived as soon as the British started shooting. Naval officer think it is possible the blast from the exploding ship also destroyed the sub."

Later on during the voyage another ship was sighted and a boarding party from the Canadians' ship scrambled to the decks of the craft, but it turned out to be a Portuguese transport.

SEA CRASHED ABOARD SHIP

Local Sailor Serving With Canadian Navy Almost Washed Overboard

C.P.O. T. GIBBONS

Serving with the Royal Canadian Navy for the past fourteen years, Chief Petty Officer T. Gibbons, now spending a month's furlough at his home, 931 Green Street, has had some interesting experiences; but none came so near ending his career as a big sea which broke over the destroyer he was aboard during the present war in the North Atlantic.

Gibbons was making his way along the deck when the wave crashed aboard. Seeing it coming, the sailor braced himself and held on with both hands. The weight of water was too great for his strength, however, and he went along the deck with it; but was caught by shipmates before being carried overboard.

Life afloat on a destroyer at the present time is a bit nerve-wracking, C.P.O. Gibbons states. One is pretty much always dressed and wearing a lifebelt. His ship took part in the chase of the Bismarck and was present at the Churchill-Roosevelt meeting. His destroyer also picked up survivors from sunken ships on two occasions.

The Victorian's experiences also included duty ashore following Nazi aerial bombardments of Greenock and Belfast. He and his mates dug numerous victims out of the debris in both places, and helped get those who needed attention into hospitals.

PRETORIA (CP) — Arising from the death of a man in a motor-car accident, Miss Melania Camp, twenty-seven, was fined £50 ($225) or three months, for culpable homicide.

GROUND ALL AIR LINERS

U.S. Army Manoeuvres Take Precedence Over Commercial Plane Services

SEATTLE, Oct. 28 (AP). — The United States army today grounded all commercial air liners in Western Washington and Oregon, except in clear weather, during the aircraft warning exercises of the Interceptor Command of the 2nd Air Force, starting today and lasting through Friday.

The airway-traffic bureau at Boeing Field was notified no "instrument-flight" plans would be approved during hours of the exercises, which were listed as 10 a.m. until 5 a.m. today, tomorrow and Thursday and from noon Friday for a twenty-four-hour period.

Two United Air Lines planes had cleared Boeing Field and Northwest Airlines had cleared one today when the order was received, shortly after noon.

The grounding order extends south to Medford, Ore., north to the Canadian line and east to Pendleton, Ore.

Thick weather meantime postponed scheduled army plane flights on the first day of the command exercises, so simulated "canned" warnings were fed the filter centres to give the plotting officers a rehearsal.

Seven hundred fifty civilian observers will take part in the exercises, telephoning air raid warnings to the filter centres, when the actual flights begin, probably tomorrow. There will be daily raids from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., with blackouts and night raids scheduled Friday in Western Oregon.

Here today as observers were Air Commodore E. A. Godfrey, commanding the Royal Canadian Air Force Western Air Command, and Wing Cmdr. E. C. Duke, both of Victoria.

Mainland Officer Serving in Navy Overseas Wounded

OTTAWA, Oct. 28 (CP).—The Royal Canadian Navy today released the names of one man who died and one officer wounded during air attack. Lieut. Kenneth MacRae, R.C.N.V.R., was wounded during an air attack, the navy said. His next of kin is his wife, Mrs. Bernice MacRae, 3736 Pandora Street, Vancouver.

Acting Engine-Room Artificer, fourth class, William Edward Richardson, whose official number is V23098, was reported as having died October 14. His next of kin is his wife, Mrs. Doris Amy Richardson, Ville Emard, Montreal.

Richardson's death brought to 426 the number of dead and missing officially reported by the Royal Canadian Navy since the war started.

DEPARTURE OF SHIP DELAYED

Sailors, Stewards Wrangle Aboard Southbound Alaska Liner Baranof

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Oct. 29 (AP). —The Alaska Steamship Company's steamer Baranof was delayed here shortly yesterday by another internation dispute, twice responsible for halting sailings from Seattle, as sailors and stewards wrangled about members of the others' crews.

Company officials said the boat was held at the dock when stewards insisted that a certain sailor be put behind bars, and sailors retaliated with demands that two stewards be locked up.

The stewards walked off the ship, but a few returned to get breakfasts for the 339 passengers and the remainder returned later. The coast guard then threatened to tow the Baranof into the stream to prevent blocking an oil dock.

Later, sailors complied when the captain ordered the lines cast off, and the boat headed for Seattle, the dispute unsettled. Nature of the dispute has not been revealed.

Six weeks ago the Baranof was delayed in Seattle before sailing North when firemen objected to one of the cooks. The Aleutian was held up the following week as the stewards wrangled over one of their own crew.

HOW ELDERLY WOMAN ESCAPED BACKACHE

Many people think that backache is a trouble that comes naturally with advancing years, but this woman of 71 proves that it is not.

"I suffered for a long time from backache," she writes, "but put it down to my age (71). Reading your announcement, I thought I would try Kruschen Salts. I have been taking it for some time and have found great relief. I thought you would like to know it has done me a world of good."—(Mrs.) E.R.

When pains in the back are caused by inactive kidneys and failure of the digestive system to throw off poisonous impurities, Kruschen Salts will give real help in setting the matter right. Because Kruschen has a diuretic action which helps to flush your kidneys and liver. After that, your blood throws off all impurities; you get happy relief from pain.

EXPERIENCED RAILROADER

New C.P.R. Superintendent At Penticton Began Career in 1907

J. L. PALETHORPE

J. L. Palethorpe, who recently left Medicine Hat to become superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the Kettle Valley division at Penticton, is a railroader whose wide experience has taken him from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and into many branches of his business.

He started his career at Montreal in October, 1907, with the old Dominion Express Co., now the Canadian Pacific Express; then went to the Canadian Northern Quebec Railway which he served until February, 1910, when he joined the Canadaian Pacific Railway in the sleeping and dining-car department at Montreal.

From October, 1911, until May, 1912, he "clerked" with the MacDonnell & O'Brien construction company at La Tuque, Quebec, but came back to the C.P.R. as car distributor in the sleeping and dining-car department at Montreal, later becoming inspector.

His career turned to the operating department in 1920 when he became chief clerk in the vice-president and general manager's office at Montreal, and in January, 1926, he was appointed assistant superintendent of the Montreal terminals. There followed various appointments as assistant superintendent at Montreal, Smiths Falls and elsewhere until 1932 when he came to Western lines, where he was assistant superintendent, first at Minnedosa and later at Brandon until January, 1935, when he was appointed superintendent at Edmonton, going to Medicine Hat as superintendent November 1, 1936.

TRAINING IS BETTER NOW

Great War Ace Feels Present Air Force Has Higher Prestige

HALIFAX, Oct. 28 (CP)—The Empire's air forces are not only better trained, they are moulded from "better material" than in the first Great War, Air Commodore Raymond Collishaw told newsmen here today.

One of the great aces of the last war, the British Columbia-born R.A.F. commander in Egypt is in Halifax on an unofficial visit and was joined by his wife, who came East from Vancouver. It is his first visit to Canada since 1926.

The air force, he said, has a "higher prestige" now than it did in 1914-18. "The army and the navy had the prestige last time. Now ours is sufficient to draw the cream of our manhood."

Coupled with the more extensive training, this has tended to produce "better" airmen for the Empire, Collishaw said.

His men, outnumbered five to one when General Sir Archibald Wavell was pushing back the Axis forces in the Western Desert last year, found the Germans "better flyers than the Italians—more skillful and more daring."

He had seen graduates of Canada's Air Training Plan in action and considered them "very good." There were few Canadians in Egypt now, although there had been a considerable number of them in the R.A.F. there at the outbreak of war.

Collishaw, who shot down sixty planes in the dogfights of the last war, said that type of aerial conflict now is "out." The speed of modern aircraft made the "waltzes" of that era impossible today.

He did not see, however, why it should be impossible for modern aces to amass totals like his or other topnotchers. "If they are posted to some hot spot, say London, which is under heavy fire," he said, "there are lots of chances to knock them down."

HIT DIRECT BY TORPEDO

Large British Tanker Sunk Off Liberia by Enemy Submarine

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP).—Marine circles said today the 6,996-ton tanker British Mariner suffered a direct torpedo hit on her engine-room and probably was sunk in an attack October 20 on a convoy 250 miles west of Monrovia, Liberia.

They said the attack occurred near where a submarine sank the American freighter Lehigh the day before, approximately 3,000 miles from occupied France. The British Mariner, built in 1922, had been carrying American oil to Britain.

Three Finnish freighters aiding in the fight against Russia have been sunk by enemy action in the Baltic Sea with a total loss of twenty lives, marine circles also reported.

They were the Hogland, 4,360 tons, eight killed, formerly in trade between Petsamo, Baltimore and Norfolk; the Tauri, 2,517 tons, all saved, formerly in trade between Newport News, Havana and Finland, and the Cisli, 1,848 tons, twelve killed.

Three Finnish freighters engaged in carrying American supplies to Petsamo before Finland entered the war against Russia have been captured by British units, the sources added.

They are the Modesta, 3,830 tons; Solbritt, 1,842 tons; Rolfsborg, 1,831 tons. All traded between Gulf and Southeastern United States ports.

Merchant Marine Sailormen Will Get Ditty Bags

Shower Held For Hospital

DUNCAN, Oct. 28.—The annual fruit and vegetable shower for the King's Daughters' Hospital was held at the Nurses' Home yesterday afternoon, generous donations of jams, jellies, pickles and fruit being received. Mrs. A. X. Rey and Mrs. John Fox received donations as they arrived. A business meeting was held by the W.A. to the Cowichan Hospital Association, with Mrs. R. H. M. Shaw in the chair. Mrs. G. H. Savage, the treasurer, reported a bank balance of $81.84. The committee of the president and the hospital matron, Mrs. Pooley, appointed at the last meeting to ascertain the most pressing needs for furnishing the new wing, reported in favor of buying linen for the $150 voted to be spent in the new building. The W.A. had already paid for a steam table installed in the building, which would be a more permanent mark of auxiliary assistance. The meeting accepted the report and the linen will be acquired immediately. It was reported that the official opening of the additions to the hospital would take place early in November, at which time the annual linen shower, postponed from Hospital Sunday, would be held.

Mrs. O. T. Smythe reported on the library, which had been started by the W.A. in connection with the hospital. Four hundred books had been donated, fiction, non-fiction and a section for children had been started. The library was proving popular with the patients. Books were taken around once a week, last week forty-seven having been issued. It had been found necessary to have larger bookcases built, and the meeting endorsed the expenditure involved.

An appeal was made for Western stories, which are much in demand, and any new books would be most gratefully received.

Mrs. J. Nicholls reported on the recent British Columbia Hospital Association convention at which she was a delegate from the W.A. She dealt in an interesting way with the reports of hospital auxiliaries from all parts of the province, which showed ways in which hospitals were aided and money raised.

Final arrangements for the community bazaar to be held in the K. of P. Hall, December 6, were made. Women's organizations in the district were generous in offers of aid, several having representatives present to learn in what way they could best assist.

After the meeting tea was served by Mrs. John Gibb and Mrs. G. P. McMillan.

A Slimming Embroidered Frock

PATTERN 4874

By ANNE ADAMS

THAT first dark afternoon dress of the season is all-important! If you're smart and youthful but not-so-slim, Pattern 4874, by Anne Adams, is just the style you want. The lovely, colorful flower embroidery that lights up the bodice at either side of the deep V-neck is optional but so enchanting. Make the motifs quickly from their easy transfer pattern, aided by directions in the Sewing Instructor. Notice the slenderizing lines given by those two bodice panels that "square off" into a double-pointed front waistband. A buckled sash finishes off the waist in back. The side-front bodice sections are soft-cut, with gathers above the waist and darts at the shoulder. A row of buttons in front makes a nice finishing touch to this chic frock.

Pattern 4874 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36, 3⅛ yards, 39-inch.

Send 20c in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Small Group Of Children Do War Work

A group of children of the Christian Science Church Sunday School have been meeting each week at the home of Mrs. H. Smith, Pendergast Street, to knit and sew for the bombed-out children of Britain. A display of the work accomplished is a tribute to the industry of the youngsters and to the patient help of Mrs. Smith, who has guided them through the intricacies of patterns and stitches. Her husband is serving in the army overseas. In the collection, which was seen yesterday by a Colonist representative, were some beautiful quilts, lined with wool; children's "snow-suits," which are considered ideal in the shelters on cold Winter nights, and babies' layettes, which were particularly attractive, and included nightgowns for the baby's mother. There were little boys' and girls' suits and dresses, some of them beautifully tailored, and dear to the heart of any small child are the soft "cuddly" cats made from old wool stockings, stuffed and shaped.

The children who belong to the little group vary in age, the eldest being sixteen, and the youngest, Mrs. Smith's own little daughter, who is barely four years old, does her share of plain knitting, though she admits she can "purl and plain and rib" as well. The group includes Marilyn Hunter, Diana and Flora Hartshorne, Dorothy Jackson, Joy Groves, June Harrison, Joan Webb, Pay Paulin, Lillian Maddock, Madeline Langley and Margaret and Lucy McLeary, two little "war guests" from England. The garments made by the children are sent through the local Christian Science Church to Vancouver, whence they are forwarded to England.

RED CROSS

ESQUIMALT

The monthly meeting of the Esquimalt Unit of the Red Cross was held in the schoolroom of the Esquimalt United Church, Mrs. Baugh-Allen, the president, in the chair. The president introduced Mrs. Ward, of the Victoria Red Cross, who exhibited and spoke of the penny cards. Mrs. E. V. Finland and Mrs. A. S. Parkes will have charge of these cards and will ask storekeepers to display them. Mrs. M. R. Jamieson kindly gave the unit a beautiful layette which she had won, and which she has donated to be disposed of to raise funds for the unit. Plans were made for an "imaginary bazaar" in November, and all members wishing invitations to send to friends were asked to leave the names with the president, Mrs. Baugh-Allen. E 1881, by November 3. Donations may be sent to the person issuing the invitation or to the treasurer, Miss K. Fraser, or to the Superfluities Store, or Fulmer's Drug Store, Esquimalt. After the meeting, tea was served by Mrs. Hood, Mrs. Arthur Crane and Mrs. G. Wise.

Miss Siddall Again Heads Active Group

Miss Marjorie Siddall was re-elected president of the Daughters of Pity at the annual meeting held on Monday night at the Jubilee Nurses' Home. Other officers were elected as follows: Vice-president, Miss I. Bannerman; secretary, Miss A. E. Hall; treasurer, Miss M. Tait; executive committee, Mrs. C. Smith, Miss M. Chrow, Miss I. Edwards; buying committee, Miss C. Couves and Miss Bannerman; refreshment convener, Miss E. Barrowclough.

The club's efforts on behalf of the Children's Ward of the hospital, which has always been the members' special interest and care, were recorded in the report of Miss Phyllis McCaw, the retiring secretary. During the year the ward was supplied with five new beds and $100 was voted towards a mobile therapy unit for the hospital. At Christmas time the ward was suitably decorated, but owing to the prevalence of infectious diseases, the annual party was cancelled. Gifts were distributed to the children. At Easter, flowers were sent to the ward and each child received a decorated basket.

Money to carry on the work during the year had been raised by means of a white elephant party in November, a contest in December, a blossom-time tea in April, a tag day in May and the Violet Powkes dance recital in June.

The treasurer, Miss E. Hill, reported the year's total receipts as $463.62 and the disbursements, $549.94. The largest expenditure for the year was $400, spent on beds for the ward.

Votes of thanks were accorded the outgoing officers and the press. Miss Mitchell, director of nursing, spoke a few words, expressing the gratitude of the board of directors to the club members. After the meeting Miss Siddall gave an interesting talk on "The History of Cosmetics," and refreshments were served.

SOCIAL GATHERING

An enjoyable congregational social was held in the Wilkinson Road United Church on Monday evening in place of the annual harvest supper which the members decided to dispense with this year, owing to war conditions.

A programme was presented by the Young People's Group which included vocal solos by Bob Marconi, who also played his own accompaniment; readings by Miss Pat Gilham; a playette, entitled "The Sewing Circle," by Annie Fagerberg, Helen Phillips, Gwen Garner, Muriel Smith, Verene Maurer, Dorothy Dye and Bramwell Garner, and selections by a vocal quartette which included Mrs. Burkholder, Miss Jessie Ritz, Rev. W. Allan and Jack Ritz. Motion pictures of local scenes and a trip to Kingston, Jamaica, were shown by Jim Smith. A contest entitled "Scriptural Baseball" was held between senior members of the church and members of the Y.P.S., with the high score going to the seniors. At the close of the entertainment refreshments were served.

India Playing Important Part in Titanic Struggle

Alfred Wharton Addresses Women's Canadian Club — India and Britain See Value in Policy of Compromise—Outlines Historical Background

Basing his remarks upon intimate knowledge after years of life in India, where he latterly held the position of editor of The Madras Times, Mr. Alfred Wharton, now a professor at North Shore College, North Vancouver, gave a masterly address before the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon at the Empress Hotel, his subject being "India's Place in the Sun."

The address was profoundly interesting, delivered in a racy manner with touches of humor that could not fail to make an appeal to his audience, and the speaker gave a word picture that embraced the background of the political life of the great country, the difficulties met in an attempt at organization and co-ordination, and the part that India is playing in the present war.

POLITICAL KNOTS

Defining a place in the sun as "a place in the world commensurate with one's requirements and importance," he pointed out that "it redounds to the credit of our system of governing India, that the leaders of that country and we are unraveling the political knots by compromise and not by slaughter." India now had a million men equipped and ready for war. When 300 specialists were wanted, 18,000 sent in their names. The war work programme included the building of tanks, corvettes and mine sweepers, the furnishing of drugs and medical supplies, in addition to the gift of 800,000,000 sandbags. Recognizing its important position, India has been made the headquarters of the Southern Command and as such holds the key place in a grand arch of prepared defence. As their part in the war effort, the landlords had reduced rents for those tenants whose sons were serving in the army.

The religious differences among the peoples of India had been a factor in making for disunity, he went on, pointing out the extent of the bitterness which exists between Hindus and Mohammedans, so that [illegible] government had been impossible. The fact that one-third of India was under native rule, comprising the "native states", and that there were 225 distinct languages, unintelligible to each other, were among the difficulties to be faced in trying to bring the country one Government.

The speaker referred to the caste system and its origin, and pointed out by way of contrast the educated, brilliant scholars and leaders, and the 14,000,000 "aboriginals," who still live according to stone-age customs and are devil-worshippers. "Though we had policed the country and had control of public utilities, we overlooked the intangible things," Mr. Wharton said, "for these people had ambitions and self-respect, and great harm was done when Bengal was divided by Lord Curzon. In 1915 we had to rectify this mistake."

A GREAT PENDULUM

At the present time many natives held positions in the Civil Service. "One might compare India to a great pendulum," declared Mr. Wharton, "a pendulum swinging toward us as part of the Empire and swinging away as fast as it can. This latter swing is just what the Nazis would wish for," he said in conclusion, "and we must realize that we are fighting dictators and dictatorship in a spirit of compromise."

Quoting a great Indian scholar, Mr. Wharton said "civilization is greater than patriotism, it is humanity."

The appreciation of the audience was expressed to Mr. Wharton by Miss J. E. M. Bruce.

Mrs. F. G. Aldous, vice-president, who presided, announced that Dr. Frank Klein, editor of the paper The Voice of Austria in New York, will be the next speaker on "Must Europe Fear Russia?" Mrs. Bulinckx was the soloist, her charming numbers being "Into the Night" and "My House on the Hill." Miss Doreen Briggs playing piano accompaniment.

In response to the club executive's appeal for donations of wool to be used in the manufacture of blankets for the Red Cross for shipment to Britain, a generous collection of parcels was heaped up in the ballroom foyer, and, in thanking the club members for their gifts, Mrs. Aldous appealed for more wool, which may be left at Scurrah's, Ltd., Yates Street; at the Y.W.C.A., or brought to the club meetings.

ABOUT YOUR BABY

Keeping Baby Covered at Night

By LETTICE LEE STREET

"Will you please give suggestions for providing warmth and protection during the coming months? My sixteen months old boy travels over his entire bed while sleeping, crawls from beneath the covers fastened over him. I am sure he would not permit the use of a sleeping bag, as I did not use one to start, and so he is not accustomed to one."

Answer—This problem is not an unusual one; as many babies will stand up in their cribs on bitterly cold mornings until one would think that they would turn to small icicles, but they do not seem to mind a bit. Nevertheless, they are running the risk of catching cold and this practice should not be allowed.

There are several types of efficient sleeping bags on the market designed to cover and restrict these active young fresh air friends.

JUST WHO IS BOSS?

I feel that this mother is starting out with a faulty attitude towards her baby if she already says, "He will not permit me to do so and so." If she continues in this manner she will find to her grief and his, that there will be more and more things he will not "permit," and that he, not she, will be boss. It is not within an infant's power to avoid so simple an arrangement as a sleeping bag if his mother is firm and patient in her efforts to teach him to become accustomed to one. Babies are little creatures of habit, and they soon learn to adapt themselves to a new addition to their routine.

It is surely better for this baby to cry and struggle for several nights until he realizes that there is no use in fussing, than to be allowed to have his own way to a degree that can endanger his health.

Perhaps, too, this little child will prefer to snuggle down under the warm covers when the really sharp weather comes along.

HOME-MADE VARIETY

I know a mother who solved a similar problem by making sleeping bags in this manner: She selected warm flannel for the material which she sewed together in a large double rectangle as big as a crib sheet. At one end she cut a hole big enough for the baby's neck, and she slit the front to make a long zippered placket. Naturally she had to make several as they have to be laundered just as a sheet is. She spread the bag on the bed, tucked it in all around and pinned it securely, then the baby was placed inside and the zipper pulled up. There he was, as warm as a little "bug in a rug" and comfortably able to move his arms and legs about or to turn over at will. Any extra blankets needed were then put on top.

While we are on the subject of a sleeping warmth in Winter, I want to remind any of you young mothers, whose babies are approaching their first winters, that it is not healthy for an infant to be heavily covered at any time. The baby's blankets should be light in weight and it is better to select all wool covers than those made of cotton and wool, as the latter weigh more and are not as warm.

A little baby cannot tell us when he is uncomfortable except by crying, and even then we often have to guess at the reason for his misery. You know yourself how unhappy you are when you have too many bedclothes over you, and babies are just the same. It is better for a baby to be too cool than too hot.

Clothing Fund Is Augmented

DUNCAN, Oct. 28—In aid of funds to buy material for clothing for refugees, an entertainment was held at St. John's Hall last evening, at which $50 was cleared. Moving pictures were shown by Messrs. F. A. Ashton, H. A. Dreany and Captain J. D. Groves. Mr. Ashton's films were a delight to flower lovers, as many rare and lovely plants and flowering shrubs were shown. Pictures of the beautiful gardens at his home, "Grove Hall," Quamichan Lake, some interesting fishing scenes, and views of London before the war, as well as some logging operations at Campbell River were enjoyed. Mr. Dreany's films were nature studies of wild life, flower and garden pictures and local scenery, all of which were much enjoyed. Captain Groves' reel showing a cougar hunt during which three animals were bagged, was very popular. He also showed some animal pictures, taken at his home, and finished with a film taken on a journey from San Francisco to Singapore.

Mr. K. F. Duncan acted as chairman for the evening. During an intermission Dr. W. B. Clayton spoke very briefly on the need of buying War Savings Certificates "to help preserve the sort of life we have been seeing filmed." Miss L. Monk played soft music during the showing of the pictures.

The show was arranged by Mrs. F. O. Aldersey, Mrs. J. D. Groves and Mrs. C. S. Crane. They were assisted by Mrs. D. M. McCaul and Mrs. George Colk and others. Flowers donated by Mr. F. B. Carbery, and cooked food was sold during the evening. Mr. C. S. Crane was at the door.

Canadian Jewish Women Aid British War Victims

Members of Canada's Hadassah had set $250,000 as their war work objective this year, the twenty-fifth anniversary of their foundation, said Mrs. A. Raginsky, of Montreal, national president of the Jewish Women's Federation, yesterday. Mrs. Raginsky is paying her first visit to this city as president of the organization, and in addressing the Victoria Chapter last evening in the vestry of the synagogue, she reviewed the work of Hadassah, since the beginning of the war.

Last year the sum of $186,000 was sent to England for the relief of bombed victims, two ambulances were equipped and sent, a ward of thirty beds was furnished at Tatlow Hospital on Lady Astor's estate, and a military hospital was being built in Palestine for the British wounded, which would be named for the former president, Mrs. H. A. Freeman, O.B.E.

CARE FOR CHILDREN

Care of the children was the special work of Hadassah, Mrs. Raginsky explained, telling of the nursing home to be built in England for the infant air raid victims, and a ward already furnished for the wounded children in England. The nursing home will be built by United States and Canadian funds, donations from the friends of the late Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, for whom the hospital will be named.

All the Hadassah contributions passed through the Canadian Red Cross, Mrs. Raginsky said.

The problem of saving Jewish children from many European countries had been in part solved by the contributions of sympathetic North Americans, who had financed the transportation of the children to France, to Sweden, but mostly to England, where 6,000 had been harbored, and later sent to Palestine.

Thrilling, though heartbreaking, stories could be written of how these children had been sent to Palestine, some by airplane to Russia, others via Siberia, escaping under cover of night, she said. Eighty-five per cent of the 6,000 were now established on farms in Palestine, Mrs. Raginsky told her audience.

Canadian Hadassah had sent through the Red Cross, 3,000 pairs of socks to the mine sweepers in England, and $250 and 500 pairs of socks to the Navy League in the past year. From its funds it had also bought $10,000 worth of Canadian War Savings Certificates.

This year Hadassah planned to buy two mobile kitchens for the bombed civilians, each kitchen having a capacity for feeding 250 persons at one time.

WAR WORK IN PALESTINE

Palestine, Mrs. Raginsky described as the Eastern frontier of the British Empire, and said the thousands of Anzac and Imperial soldiers stationed there were being looked after by the contributions of the Canadian Hadassah. Palestine women under the leadership of the Hon. Mrs. Edwin Samuel, daughter of Sir Herbert Samuel, were engaged in A.R.P. work. They were receiving training as transport drivers and technicians, and they were managing army canteens and doing the same war work as the women in Britain.

Canadian Hadassah planned to furnish army huts in Palestine, Mrs. Raginsky said, though the requirements for such huts would be different from our own, in view of the climatic conditions of the country.

RELIEF PLEDGES

On her tour across Canada where she had been visiting all the chapters of Hadassah, Mrs. Raginsky was gratified with the pledges of each centre. Toronto had promised $55,000; Winnipeg, $20,000; Medicine Hat, with only twenty-two families, the sum of $700; Moose Jaw, $1,000; Calgary, $5,000, and Vancouver, $5,000. The women raised the money with the usual bazaars, teas and bridge parties.

Mrs. Raginsky complimented the Jewish women of Canada for the part they were playing in the community life of every centre, and she praised members of the Victoria Chapter, under Mrs. S. E. Levy, for their generous contributions to the Hadassah war work fund.

AUSTRALIAN WINS VICTORIA CROSS

NEW ZEALANDERS DECORATED

LONDON, Oct. 28 (CP)—Outstanding valor of two tough New Zealand soldiers earned them the Victoria Cross, highest decoration members of the armed forces can win, in the bitterly-contested Battle of Crete. The announcement of the awards was made on October 14. Today the citations were made public.

Second Lieutenant Charles Hazlitt Upham, of Christchurch, although twice wounded and suffering from dysentery, led numerous attacks over a period of eight days and helped bring out wounded men under fire. Once when attacked by two Germans he fell and shammed death, later killing both his assailants.

Sergeant Alfred Clive Hulme, of Wellington, personally stalked and shot thirty-three enemy snipers during an eight-day period before he was seriously wounded. Once he penetrated the German lines, killing a mortar crew of four and thus materially assisting in withdrawal of the main defending forces through Stylos.

The only other New Zealander awarded the V.C. so far in this war is Sergeant Pilot James Allen Ward, who was reported missing in September.

Upham commanded a forward position in the attack on Maleme, May 22, said the official citation. He fought his way forward more than 3,000 yards unsupported by any other arms and against a strongly-organized defence.

FORCED ENEMY BACK

At Galatos, May 25, his platoon was heavily engaged by the enemy with mortar and machine-gun fire. When the Germans advanced the platoon killed more than forty with fire and grenades and forced the remainder to fall back. Later the platoon again had to retire and Upham went to warn other troops they were being cut off.

On May 30 at Sphakia his platoon had to tackle an enemy party in a ravine. Upham placed his men on a slope overlooking the ravine, then went to the top himself with a Bren gun and two riflemen. "By clever tactics he induced the enemy party to expose itself, and then at a range of 500 yards shot twenty-two and caused the remainder to disperse in panic," the citation said.

Hulme's citation described how he led parties of men to destroy enemy organized parties near Maleme airdrome, May 20 and 21. "Numerous snipers in this area were dealt with by Sergeant Hulme personally; 130 dead were counted. On May 22, 23 and 24, Sergeant Hulme was continually out alone or with one or two men destroying enemy snipers."

TO DISCUSS BONUS

At a meeting to be held at 2:30 p.m. Thursday in the Knights of Pythias Hall, the recently-formed organization of retired Dominion civil servants will discuss the applicability of a cost of living bonus to their group, and will have an opportunity to sign a petition accordingly. H. R. Whaley is acting secretary of the organization.

Rev. Dr. George Little spoke of modern methods of education, especially in regard to temperance teaching. He commended the effective teaching in the screen version of Bernard Shaw's play, "Major Barbara." As a rule, he said, the screen "is pro-alcoholic," and Hollywood productions were frequently aggressive liquor propaganda. "Major Barbara" presented the other side. The power of the "trade" over government was portrayed.

Mrs. James Mabon, of Montreal, treasurer, reported contributions to patriotic and war work of more than $5,000 and a balance of $700 in that fund. This included an ambulance from Toronto district, mobile canteens from Ontario and British Columbia, Victory Bond for $625 from London, a $100 gift from Manitoba. Quebec has now collected $500 for a mobile canteen.

The Sarah Rowell Wright Endowment Fund now totals $25,100; the interest will be used for extension work; $2,237 has been spent on the Sunday school study course, and the World Mission received $999 in the two years. The Safety School on Wheels was financed in its itinerary in Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba.

One evening's programme was in the hands of the young people, which included a pageant of youth and presentation of awards. The banner for increase in membership went to Nova Scotia, the silver cup for largest membership to New Brunswick, the efficiency award to two young women's groups in British Columbia, the Uneeda and the Willisecroft.

Miss Mary Campbell, of India, missionary of W.C.T.U., addressed a large gathering.

Engagement Is Announced

Mr. R. D. McA. Law, Trent Street, announces the engagement of his only daughter, Margaret Ella, to Mr. Brenton W. (Brent) Murdoch, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Murdoch, Chaucer Street. The wedding will take place on November 22, at the Belmont United Church.

Resident Seeks Mulberry Leaves For Silkworms

Co-operation of residents who have mulberry trees in their gardens is asked by Cecil French, who hopes to raise silkworms in connection with a course in practical natural history.

Mr. French says he is now making arrangements to obtain a supply of eggs. These would hatch next May, and at that time he would like volunteers to supply mulberry leaves to be used as food.

Mr. French has had extensive practical experience in the cultivation of silkworms and hopes to interest students in city schools in his "fascinating hobby." He has offered to place eggs in schools so that students may observe their progress in development.

Father of Ten Shot Out Hunting

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Oct. 28 (CP)—Joe Wachtler, prominent farmer and old timer of the Milk River district, died in hospital here last night after being accidentally shot while hunting.

Accompanied by two sons, George and Albert, the farmer went to shoot coyotes thirty-five miles east of here. Arriving at their destination, the boys are understood to have got out of the car while the father remained in it. A gun accidentally discharged, the bullet passing through Mr. Wachtler's arm and into his chest.

His widow and ten children survive.

Mother, This Home-Mixed Cough Relief Is Splendid

Saves Real Money. No Cooking. Real Results.

To get really surprising relief from coughs due to colds, you can easily prepare a medicine, right in your own kitchen. It's very easy—anyone can do it—needs no cooking, and tastes so good that children take it willingly. But you'll say it's hard to beat, for quick results.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, and pour it into a 16 ounce bottle. Then add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really splendid cough syrup—about 4 times as much for your money. It never spoils, and lasts a family a long time.

And for real, quick relief, it is actually splendid. It works in three ways—loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action in coughs and bronchial irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

STRANDED FLYERS BEING GIVEN AID

Refugees From France Tell of Help Being Given to British Airmen

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Two women, who arrived from Europe today after fifteen years' residence in France, said a secret underground organization is smuggling stranded Royal Air Force flyers back to Britain and helping Frenchmen flee the country to join Free French forces.

The women, Miss Helen Hill, of New York, and Miss Violet Maxwell, a British subject, said they closed the nursery school which they operated just outside Nice when the authorities began issuing ration cards.

They said they had no details of how the underground system operated and many of the British flyers, forced down over occupied France, did not know the methods of their benefactors.

BY WAY OF SPAIN

"The flyers are simply told to go to certain places at certain times and meet certain people," said Miss Hill. "They follow their instructions and within a few days or weeks they find themselves across the Spanish border and thence make their way to Britain."

The women said they talked to twelve R.A.F. flyers, in uniform at Barcelona, who had escaped from occupied France.

The women said that in unoccupied France persons listening to British or American broadcasts are subject to fines ranging from twenty-five to 25,000 francs and that many people are turning against the Vichy Government for its defeatist attitude.

Arms and ammunition are being concealed throughout France, the women said, awaiting the day when British forces arrive.

A.R.P. Activities

District 2A, Fairfield—All wardens will attend at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium on Thursday at 8 p.m. to see the latest films on A.R.P. work to be shown by the Provincial Police. Badges must be worn. Patrol leaders will attend an important meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Friday prior to the weekly lecture. A British handbook, "Practical Guide for A.R.P. Wardens" is on sale, the number available will soon be exhausted, but copies may still be obtained from Col. F. G. Hood or the C.P.C. office, City Hall. All wardens are asked to register at once for an anti-gas course starting on November 21, four lectures to be held at the usual time and place on Fridays. Full Christian name and address must be given. Those who have not obtained the first-aid certificate should also register for that course. With the situation on the Pacific becoming worse, wardens are asked to attend all meetings. Last Friday, Sergeant Bishop, of the city police, gave the second of his valuable and interesting lectures on police work, and it is hoped he will give the third in the near future. On October 31 there will be a lecture on "Blast and Splinter-Proof Shelters." For the information of those who have not attended lately the discussions are held every Friday at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of the Sir James Douglas School. The average attendance has been sixty-five, out of some 180 whose names are recorded as willing to serve as wardens.

About 30,000 persons are employed in the commercial fisheries of Alaska.

TRAINING IN TRADES FREE

Young Men May Apply at Air Force Headquarters, Belmont Building, Here

Young men desiring to take specialized training in technical trades so that they may later enlist in the R.C.A.F. should apply at Western Air Command headquarters, Belmont Building.

Trades are taught in the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training schools operated in co-operation with the R.C.A.F. Under the plan students receive subsistence allowance during an eighteen weeks' civilian course of free training as aero engine mechanics, airframe mechanics and wireless operators for ground duties.

Young men between eighteen and thirty are eligible. Education must be high school entrance or better, and the standard of medium fitness is that required by the R.C.A.F. for ground duties. Birth certificate and proof of education are required.

ALLOWANCE PAID

By arrangement with the Dominion and Provincial Governments, the courses, which have a civilian value of several hundred dollars, are made available to suit applicants without charge, and a cash allowance is made to students during their period of training. Practical value of the course is also enhanced by the fact that the latest actual service equipment is made available through the R.C.A.F.

Graduating students are enlisted immediately in the R.C.A.F. in the specialized trades for which they have qualified. More than 700 men have already enlisted in British Columbia.

BASIC TRAINING FIRST

The student aero engine and airframe mechanics are first given ten weeks' basic training in sheet metal work, riveting and machine shop practice. Those selected for aero engine mechanics then receive a further two months' advanced training in the theory of combustion engines, and the servicing and repair of all types of radial and "in line" aircraft motors. Training includes comprehensive practical work on latest R.C.A.F. equipment, from the study of engines to final assembly and actual testing.

Airframe mechanics spend the same period of advanced training in theory of flight, rigging and construction of aircraft, stresses, alloys, forging and advanced sheet metal work.

Wireless operator (ground) students spend their eighteen weeks' training in intensive study of wireless theory, receiving and sending, set maintenance, and the International Code.

RELIEF LISTS AT LOW POINT

Increase in Employment Reflected in Provincial Registrations

September relief lists in British Columbia were the lowest of any similar month in the last ten years, Provincial relief officials reported yesterday. The lists included 3,536 employable men, with 3,710 dependents; and 8,631 individuals, including dependents, classified as unemployable, for a total of 15,877 names.

In September a year ago, a total of 28,018 individuals were in receipt of relief within the province, of whom 10,000 were considered unemployable. Though the unemployable roster has changed little, the lists of those capable of working has been decreasing steadily.

Not since the inception of relief a decade ago, have September lists been as small. The list included 1,794 employable heads of families, and 1,742 employable single men; out of a total population estimated at 750,000 individuals.

PLAN PROVIDES FUTURE NEEDS

Change in Regulations Will Insure Continued Enlistment in R.C.A.F.

Opening of enlistment to young men with only two years' high school education is already resulting in an increase in applications for the R.C.A.F., according to F.O. J. C. Hackney, recruiting officer.

Announcement of the change in the regulations, which formerly insisted on junior matriculation standing, was made on Monday. Its effect, F.O. Hackney pointed out, will be to enable many suitable men to enter the air force who were formerly barred only because they had not the educational requirements.

LOOK TO FUTURE

The change was made not because of any scarcity of available men now, but rather to guarantee that future requirements will be taken care of, the recruiting officer explained.

Under the new plan, recruits will be sent to special schools to study essential subjects to qualify them to train as pilots and observers.

Applications for enlistment in the R.C.A.F. are being received at Western Air Command headquarters, Belmont Building, where a recruiting officer is stationed Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of each week.

MADE A GOOD JOB OF IT

Walking through the wood, the artillery officer was very surprised to see a number of his men climbing trees and crawling through bushes.

"What's the great idea?" he snapped. "What do you men think you are doing?"

"Well, sir," said the sergeant, "we've camouflaged the gun so well that we can't find it."

Americans Expect To Be Contenders For Hockey Crown

Manager "Red" Dutton Has Several Promising Youngsters Trying for Places on This Year's Club—To Face Red Wings in First Match On Sunday—Veterans to Get Chance

By MARSHALL BATEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28 (CP)—Managing New York Americans National Hockey League Club has been no bed of roses for Mervyn (Red) Dutton, but each year the Calgary fireball takes the bad breaks in stride and comes up fighting.

A year ago old age caught up with half Dutton's team and the retirement epidemic forced him to rebuild drastically. Dutton promptly came up with five promising youngsters. Goalie Charlie Rayner, Defenceman Pete Slobodian and Forwards Bill Benson, Bus Wycherley and Norm Larson.

The club finished sixth in the standings, but Red counted on that year's experience to ripen the youngsters and make Americans a contender. This Fall the Manitoba and Saskatchewan War Services Boards refused passport authority to all hockey players, and Dutton lost all five of last year's rookies and, in addition, had to pass up services of Garth Bush, Regina amateur, on whom he had counted as a defence stop-gap.

And, as if fate had not been sufficiently unkind, Defenceman Charlie Conacher retired, Americans' veteran utility man, Hooley Smith, failed to report at training camp at Port Arthur, and Dutton could not come to terms with the ageing but still effective left winger, Harvey Jackson.

HAS "KID LINE"

Dutton was definitely annoyed but far from beaten. He came up immediately with an eighteen-year-old "kid line," cashed in on an agreement with Springfield Indians, of the American League, from whom he obtained four players, and signed Mel Hill, formerly of Boston Bruins.

"I think deals I have in view for Americans will put them in the playoffs," Dutton predicted, as the club left here for Detroit, where they open the N.H.L. campaign November 2 against Red Wings.

Dutton brought up Centres Pete Kelly and Fred Thurrier from Springfield Indians, and also took two amateur rookies training at the Springfield Port Arthur camp.

The amateurs, Jimmy Peters, right winger, and Ken Mosdell, a pivot, both starred last season with Montreal Royals, Eastern Canada junior champions. These two, with Harry Watson, left-wing ace from Saskatchewan junior Quakers, form Americans' "kid line," scheduled to see action in the N.H.L. next week.

Dutton revealed that he had signed eleven players, including the "kid line," and has three player-deals on fire. Other changes planned for the Americans who defeated their inter-city rivals, Rangers, 2-1, and battled to a 1-1 draw in two exhibition games at Winnipeg were not disclosed.

Thurrier, twenty-four-year-old youth from Granby, Que., who bagged sixty-seven points in sixty-one American League games last season, sparked Americans' attack in the exhibitions, scoring both goals of the first game and starting the play for the one slammed home by Benson in the second encounter.

A smart stickhandler who packs a wicked shot, Thurrier will pivot for Hill, and an unnamed left winger. The left-wing lane was left vacant when Jackson failed to come to terms with Dutton during the pre-season training season.

TO PLAY CENTRE

Until Dutton feels Murray Armstrong is ready to undergo heavy duty at centre ice, he said Kelly will pivot for Lorne Carr and Buzz Boll. Armstrong, although he played in the exhibition games, is recovering from a back injury.

Three of Americans' defencemen are back, Pat Egan, Wilf Field and Andy Branigan, and Slobodian's spot will be taken by Tommy (Cowboy) Anderson, a veteran who was scheduled for the utility job this season.

As for a custodian, neither Dutton nor Coach Art Chapman seemed to have a worry, for Earl Robertson, returning to Americans line-up after a season with Springfield, apparently is back at peak form.

Robertson gave way to the acrobatic Rayner last season, but with Rayner's absence now he is expected to have a good year in the big time. "Robertson looks very good," was Dutton's only comment.

PASTOR STOPS WINDSOR BOY

Credited With Technical Kayo Over Al Delaney in Sixth Round

TORONTO, Oct. 28 (CP)—Pounding away methodically and without any opposition, Bob Pastor, of New York, fourth-ranking contender for Joe Louis' heavyweight boxing title, scored a technical knockout over Al Delaney, of Windsor, Ont., Canadian hampion, in the sixth round of a scheduled ten-round fight here tonight. Delaney weighed 197¾ and Pastor 182¾.

Delaney went down for the fifth time at 1:26 of the sixth round, and Referee Sammy Luftspring didn't bother to count.

Sonny Jones and Katsumi Morioka, Vancouver fighters, won their bouts in preliminary contests.

Jones made short work of Lou Severo, knocking out the Syracuse battler in 1:55 of the second round. Both weighed 147¼ pounds. Morioka gained a six-round decision over Tommy Mack, of Syracuse. Morioka weighed 121 pounds and Mack one pound less.

CHINESE CAPTURE TWO MORE ISLANDS

HONGKONG, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Chinese Central News Agency said today in a Foochow dispatch that the Chinese had captured two more islands at the mouth of the Min River during the week-end, the Japanese occupants fleeing to warships.

(Shanghai advices from Foochow yesterday said a Japanese naval garrison had left Sharp Peak Island, which dominates the approach to the Min River, the major stream of Fukien Province.)

WHIRLAWAY AFTER MARK

Famous Race Horse Arrives In California for Several Rich Events

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28 (CP)—Whirlaway, heading an invading contingent of forty-six thoroughbreds of the Calumet Stable, arrived here today to be greeted by an unprecedented throng of hundreds.

With Whirly was Some Chance, the stable's champion two-year-old, and many other fine race horses, but the Blenheim colt was the main attraction.

The triple crown winner of 1941 seeks to wrest record money-winning laurels from California's beloved Seabiscuit, and bids fair to do it in the coming Winter campaign at Santa Anita.

Whirly lags the Seabiscuit record of $437,730 by $58,069. He's eligible for stakes totaling $205,000 before the Santa Anita season is over. The golden goal, of course, is the golden gallop March 7—the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

California always will love old Seabiscuit, who reached his peak in a gallant comeback at the age of seven, but Whirly, capricious winner of the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont, holds the fancy of the world today.

Warren Wright's colt is eligible for six stakes this Winter—one worth $50,000 in added money—three $10,000 races, one $25,000 and the $100,000 handicap. Some Chance, incidentally, is eligible for $295,000 added stake money, including the $50,000 Derby.

Vancouver Manager Busy Building Ice Squad for Schedule

Tip O'Neill, Formerly With the Lions, Has Plenty Of Material on Hand for Coast Hockey League —Three After Amateur Cards

VANCOUVER, Oct. 28 (CP)—Charles (Tip) O'Neill, right winger for Vancouver Lions in the Pacific Coast Professional Hockey League last year, is hard at work building up what he hopes will be a powerful club, but he still is uncertain if he will be able to play with the team that he will pilot in the new Pacific Coast amateur loop.

O'Neill said today he can not apply for reinstatement as an amateur until he obtains his release from Guy Patrick, boss of the former Lions who is managing Tulsa Oilers in the American Association this year following the collapse of the Pacific Coast pro league. He said he has appealed to Fred (Cyclone) Taylor, president of the now defunct league, and that Taylor will take up his case shortly when he makes a trip East.

O'Neill, meanwhile, is managing and coaching a Vancouver squad, sponsored by a North Vancouver shipyard (North Vancouver Ship Repairs, Ltd.), in the four-team loop which will include Victoria Bapcos, Nanaimo Clippers and New Westminster Spitfires. He states the team will be known either as Vancouver Norvans or Vancouver Corvettes, with the former the likely choice.

Although O'Neill has not received his release from Patrick, his two former teammates, Jack Riley and Frank Jerwa, have been freed and last night sent in their applications for amateur cards.

MAY TURN OUT

O'Neill said that Riley, centre, and Jerwa, left wing in the Lions' O'Neill-Riley-Jerwa line, both may turn out with his new team if they can regain their amateur status.

"Tip" has plenty of other material to draw from, however, and expects to have a fairly strong squad lined up for the league's opening game here November 10 against Nanaimo Clippers. He has about twenty-two players trying out and expects to have the number cut to eighteen or less by the start of the schedule.

His most likely netminder is Tom Horne, teen-aged former Trail player who helped Trail Juniors capture both the British Columbia and Alberta Junior "B" championships last year.

Ronnie Taylor, a former Calgary junior player now stationed here with the Royal Canadian Air Force, also is trying out for the job.

Six candidates are angling for the defence positions with Dunc Grant and Wally Peters showing up best so far. Grant, twenty-one, a native of Kerrobert, Sask., played with Wetaskiwin, Alta., intermediates, while Peters, twenty-five, was with Trail intermediates last year. Both weigh 180 pounds or better.

The heaviest man on the defence likely will be "Casey" Jones, all-around Vancouver athlete who tips the scales at about 210 pounds. He played with Trail intermediates last year and is considered by O'Neill as a good prospect.

Other defence men who have been turning out for practice sessions include Norton Hardy, native of Ledig, Alta., and Ken Watson, of Moose Jaw, Sask. Hardy, a 165-pounder, was idle last year, but previously played for clubs at Camrose, Alta., and Pioneer Mines, B.C.

"Tip" has three prospective centres in Larry Devling, "Red" Beatty and Dick Scott.

Devling, twenty-one-year-old native of Assiniboia, Sask., played with Trail juniors and intermediates. He is good at both centre and right wing, but O'Neill thinks he looks best at centre. He weighs 160 pounds.

BEATTY TO PLAY

Beatty is a former star of the National Hockey League Boston Bruins who returned to amateur ranks and played with the Fraser Mills squad in the New Westminster senior amateur loop last year. "Tip" says he is in fair shape and working hard.

Dick Scott has played in and around Vancouver for several years and was in the same league as Beatty last season.

"Jimmer" Cameron, Thomas Dunn and Eddie Burke are right wingers trying for spots on the line-up, while left wingers include Frank Petrosky and George Hassan.

Cameron, native of Calgary, has played with Calgary Bronks and with the Gonzaga University team of Spokane, Wash. He is twenty-three and weighs 155 pounds.

Dunn, twenty-year-old native of Glasgow, Scotland, was with Trail Smoke Eaters last year and previously played junior hockey in Edmonton. He weighs 165 and O'Neill classes him as "a good hockey player."

Burke, another import from Trail Smoke Eaters, formerly played at right wing or centre for Detroit in the Eastern United States amateur league.

Petrosky, a brother of Peters—who, incidentally, changed his name—was with Trail intermediates last year, while Hassan, a native of Winnipeg, played junior hockey in Manitoba.

O'Neill has picked Art Schuman, a member of the New Westminster Cubs squad last season, as utility man. He says that Schuman, who spent four years with teams in Germany and England, looks best at right wing, but that he likes defence. He is a strong skater and has plenty of weight, tipping the scales at 190 pounds.

EXTERMINATOR TO BE HONORDED

BALTIMORE, Oct. 28 (AP).—Looking fit despite his twenty-six years, Exterminator came back today to Pimlico, where he will be honored Thursday at the opening of the Maryland Jockey Club's Fall race meeting.

"Old Bones" was brought by van from Mrs. Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Count Manor, Va., Farm. In another van came his inseparable companion, the little Shetland pony, Peanuts.

It was the first time Exterminator had been at a race track since he was retired in 1924 after eight years of campaigning, in which he earned $252,996.

On Thursday, "Old Bones" will lead the field to the post for the Exterminator Handicap, which will precede the Pimlico Special.

A plan to have Willie Knapp, Exterminator's jockey in his victorious 1918 Kentucky Derby, ride him in the post parade has been abandoned. Exterminator will be led without a rider because the old veteran might become excited with a man astride him again.

TOO FUNNY

Two men on a cargo steamer were comparing notes as to their occupations before the war. One had been a porter and the other had been a magician.

The porter said to the magician: "What can you do?"

"I can make things disappear. I'll show you," replied the magician.

Just then a torpedo hit the ship and sunk her. The two men were flung into the water. They scrambled on to a raft. The porter looked around with disgust and seeing no sign of the ship, he said to the magician: "I suppose you think that's funny?"

Bays Score Easy Win Over Rivals In Opening Game

Victoria Lacrosse Club Proves Too Strong for Salmon Arm Lads and Registers 35-6 Victory In First of Two-Game Series for Provincial Title—Play Again Tomorrow

James Bay 35, Salmon Arm 6.
Second game, tomorrow: Salmon Arm vs. James Bay, Sports Centre, the Willows, at 8:30 o'clock.

Scoring almost at will, James Bay gutted stick artists staged little short of an "all out blitz" last night at the Sports Centre, where they walloped visiting Salmon Arm boxla players, 35-6, in the first game of the best-of-three series for the British Columbia championship.

Second contest will be played tomorrow evening on the same floor and the consensus of opinion among local followers of the gutted stick pastime is that the Bays will coast to another victory and the championship, the first provincial title since organization of the club.

Tommy Middleton, Salmon Arm hotel proprietor and manager of the visitors, had little to say after the shellacking handed his boys by the Bays, other than to express the opinion that his proteges would turn in a better exhibition in the second game. Weary from three days of traveling in crowded cars, the visitors were never in the picture, and while they will be a little rested for Thursday's contest, they will have to uncork a lot more lacrosse if they hope to topple the local champions.

Bays had things pretty much their own way on the attack and Dave Gibbons, substitute goalie for Salmon Arm—the regular net custodian is in the Canadian army along with some of their other players—had no defence. James Bay attackers tore wide, gaping holes and went through to score with sizzling shots from close range.

All but two members of the James Bay squad crashed the scoring column, with husky Bob Wallace gaining top sniping honors with seven tallies. Arnold Ferguson and Norm Baker each picked up six tallies to follow right behind Wallace. Austin Cullin, with a quartette of markers, and Carl Ovcharick, with one less, were among the top scorers.

Ken Parks and "Purky" Purkis, each with two tallies, accounted for four of the six goals registered by the visitors.

After setting up a 9-1 lead in the first quarter, Bays coasted to an easy triumph, the only question in the minds of the fans being how many goals the locals would score.

Spasmodically the visitors showed signs of life, and the fans certainly applauded their every score.

Visitors billed a training session for today at the Sports Centre, and Manager Tommy Middleton hopes to be able to pep his proteges up for tomorrow's fixture.

Mayor Andrew McGavin faced off the ball to start the match, but before doing so extended an official welcome to the Salmon Arm players and expressed the hope that their stay in the British Columbia capital would be an enjoyable one.

STRONG TEAM COMING HERE

Squad Chosen by Vancouver Swimming Club for Gala On Saturday

One of the strongest swimming teams ever sent here from the Mainland will be representing the Vancouver Amateur Swimming Club at the big inter-city gala scheduled here this coming Saturday night at the Crystal Garden against the local Y.M.C.A. The first event will start at 8 o'clock and officials expect a large turnout of Victorians. Vancouver's squad will be headed by none other than Joan Langdon, who established a world's record this Summer at a regatta in the Interior.

The visitors will have a team in the senior women's relay and the senior men's event, and probably two teams in the juvenile girls' and juvenile boys' relay. They will also be represented in the junior girls' and boys' relay events. According to information received here yesterday from Ken Muir, secretary of the V.A.S.C., this team is the largest and strongest in recent years, which means that the local "Y" will be facing the toughest opposition for many a day.

During the evening Teddy Rau, of the Y.M.C.A., and Terry Connolly and Alex Matheson, of Vancouver, will give a diving exhibition.

Vancouver swimmers and the events they will compete in follow:

Joyce Dickenson — Juvenile free style and medley relay.

Audrey Aetzel—Junior backstroke, free style and breast stroke.

Betty Baggaley — Junior backstroke, free style and breast stroke.

Betty Evans—Junior backstroke and free style.

Cairo Cricket Fans See Seven Test Players in South Africa Game

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 28 (CP).— Sport

Sixteen years in the army, fourteen in the merchant navy, seventy-six fights as a flyweight boxer with forty-six ending in knockout victories, and several months as batman to General Charles de Gaulle, leader of the Free French, is the record of forty-seven-year-old Cecil Wiggins, of Liverpool.

"In the last war, five ships in which I served were torpedoed after I left them," Wiggins said. "Two I have been on in this war are now at the bottom of the sea."

Cairo cricket fans saw seven test players in action when the famous Gezira Club played a South African Infantry Brigade team in a two-day match.

The Gezira eleven included a former English captain, another English test star—both members of the Royal Air Force—a South African bowler and a New Zealand bowler. Three former test players were with the South Africans.

Paced by the English captain, who scored a century, the Gezira Club edged out their opponents in a close match.

The Aga Khan, who had only one horse in training for last season's flat racing, promises to have one of the leading stables in Great Britain next year. His agents have been prominent at bloodstock sales and he now has seven colts and many more fillies training at Newmarket. Recently he paid approximately $38,500 for Castlegay, a full brother of this year's St. Leger winner, Sun Castle. All his transactions are conducted by telegram from Geneva, where he is living.

No one was more surprised than P.O. George Beeby when Due de la Paix, an 18-to-1 shot, won the Cambridgeshire. "I thought that to win the Cambridgeshire would be too good to be true," said Beeby, who trained the horse during his periods of leave.

The Autumn classic was Rue de la Paix's thirteenth race of the season and his sixth victory.

Color-Sergeant William L. Ring, forty-seven, who won the Imperial Services heavyweight boxing championship in 1922, died at the Royal Naval Hospital, Haslar. Ring, member of the Royal Marine Artillery, once defeated Harry Greb, who later gained a decision over Gene Tunney, former world heavyweight champion.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 28 (AP).— There's a chance that Manager Roger Peckinpaugh, of Cleveland Indians, will move from a bench in the dugout to a swivel chair in the Tribe's "front office."

President Alva Bradley is considering the Indians' pilot as a successor to C. C. Slapnicka, who resigned as vice-president last month, but Peckinpaugh is "only one possibility."

Coach Charley Dressen, of Brooklyn Dodgers; Manager Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, of San Francisco Seals, and Bill Terry, manager of New York Giants, have been mentioned as possible selections for the Indians' managerial job in event Peckinpaugh is moved upstairs.

Bucko Collects His Gear

At the Theatres

MARX BROS. STAR IN "BIG STORE"

Famous Comedians Score Again With Laugh Riot Now Appearing at the Atlas

Here's just one reason why the Marx Brothers drive Hollywood—as well as their audiences—crazy!

It was probably the strangest request ever to come out of M-G-M's casting office, a bid for talent to appear in "The Big Store," latest Marx Brothers' funfest, opening today at the Atlas Theatre. This is all they wanted:

Twelve Italian children of all ages; six Swedish kids, all blondes; seven Chinese youngsters, nine Indian children, eleven little Negroes, one Scotch boy. A set of parents to fit each group.

The "league of nation" cast appears in a folding-bed sequence of the film. The Marxes get them all mixed up as only the madcap brothers could. After filming the scene, it took the real-life parents the entire afternoon to find their own youngsters in the hodge-podge.

AUSTRALIAN VIOLINIST TO PLAY AT BRENTWOOD

When Selma Reyes, Australian-born violinist, appears on Monday, November 3, at Brentwood College, her programme will open with the Sonata Op. 30 in C Minor by Beethoven. Of the ten violin and piano sonatas by the master, none is more emotionally temperamental than this work—almost a character study of Alexander I, Emperor of Russia, to whom it was dedicated. In contrast, Miss Reyes will introduce the Cyril Scott Tallahassee Suite—an impressionistic tonal retrospect of the old plantation days of the Florida peninsula. Miss Maquinna Daniels will be at the piano.

RUSSIAN BALLET SETS RECORD IN MONTREAL

Eager desire to see Col. de Basil's Original Ballet Russe, which comes to the Royal Victoria Theatre, November 17 and 18, was noted in Montreal recently, when this internationally acclaimed company appeared for a week.

According to The Montreal Star, an entirely new record was set in that city, for any event, theatrical or sporting, when ten thousand dollars was taken in advance orders. This was nothing new to Col. de Basil, for his original company have had many record-breaking triumphs at Covent Garden, Broadway, etc.

AMUSEMENTS

Atlas — The Marx Bros. in "The Big Store."

Cadet — Co-starring James Stewart and Paulette Goddard in "Pot o' Gold."

Capitol — "Major Barbara," starring Wendy Hiller and Rex Harrison.

Dominion — Jane Withers in "Her First Beau."

Oak Bay — "The Grapes of Wrath," starring Henry Fonda.

Plaza—Michael Redgrave and Margaret Lockwood, in "The Stars Look Down."

Rio—"That Night in Rio," starring Alice Faye and Don Ameche.

York—Screen version of the famous French play, "Damaged Goods."

OAK BAY THEATRE Author John Steinbeck expressed complete and hearty approval of the script which Associate Producer Nunnally Johnson prepared for Darryl F. Zanuck's production of "The Grapes of Wrath." Steinbeck's stirring novel which Twentieth Century-Fox is currently presenting at the Oak Bay Theatre with Henry Fonda, as Tom Joad, heading a great cast under the direction of John Ford.

PLAZA THEATRE From the novel by A. J. Cronin, author of "The Citadel," comes a blast of furious drama in "The Stars Look Down," English-made saga of the Welsh coal miners and the intrigues and machinations that lie behind their underground struggle for life. It is now playing at the Plaza Theatre.

RIO THEATRE Carmen Miranda's latest innovation—"Cafe-zinho"—is the popular Brazilian custom of serving a demi-tasse of coffee several times a day. It was practised during the production of "That Night in Rio," her latest film ending today at the Rio Theatre.

YORK THEATRE It was none other than President Roosevelt himself who gave Phil Goldstone the inspiration to produce a screen version of Eugene Brieux's famous French play, "Damaged Goods," which ends today at the York Theatre.

CADET THEATRE Among the gay and tuneful melodies especially composed for James Roosevelt's "Pot o' Gold," the romance of youth and music which ends today at the Cadet Theatre, are "When Johnny Toots His Horn," "Knife, Fork and Spoon," "Pete, the Piper," "Broadway Caballero," "Hi Cy" and "Do You Believe in Fairy Tales?" "Pot o' Gold" was directed by George Marshall for United Artists release.

CAPITOL THEATRE When George Bernard Shaw's play, "Major Barbara," the screen version of which is now at the Capitol Theatre, was produced in 1905, the Salvation Army to whom the theatre and the movies were "outside the pale," ignored it altogether. When, however, Gabriel Pascal announced that he would make a film of "Major Barbara," Evangeline Booth's personal secretary, Devolte, volunteered to take Pascal around the shelters, one of which figured in Shaw's play.

DOMINION THEATRE Two of the screen's most popular youngsters, Jane Withers and Jackie Cooper, are co-starred at the Dominion Theatre today in Columbia's "Her First Beau," with a cast of more than unusual ability appearing in support. Lesser players in this comedy of youthful antics and romantics include Edith Fellows, Josephine Hutchinson, William Tracy, Martha O'Driscoll, Edgar Buchanan, Una O'Connor and Jonathan Hale. Theodore Reed, who wielded the megaphone on young Cooper's Aldrich Family film, "What a Life," directed "Her First Beau."

Caribou Are on Their Trek South

GOLDFIELDS, Sask. Oct. 28 (CP).—The big annual caribou trek is on now, and many thousands of the animals are moving southward for the Winter. All last week, day and night, they passed Goldfields in steady streams, without interruption.

The hunting season was advanced ten days this year and opened October 20. Hunters were successful in getting a considerable number of caribou in the vicinity of the settlement.

THANKS JUST THE SAME

"Thank you for the presents, Annie."

"Oh, they're nothing to thank me for, Bobby."

"That's what I thought, but mother told me to thank you all the same."

GRAPHIC GOLF

By BEST BALL

SYNCHRONIZED GRIP

The letter V seems to be a great deal in the news right now with the V for victory campaign in full swing, which brings to mind there are a couple of V's in golf which have a great deal to do with correct play. The reference here is to the V's made by the thumb and forefinger of the left and right hand respectively. These should point to the right shoulder for proper co-ordination between the body and hands in their relation to the clubhead's position. A grip that encourages a turning or twisting of the clubhead so that correct impact guidance is lost is a severe handicap. With a left hand grip similar to the one illustrated above, the clubhead position is inclined to be square and constant throughout. True the firmest grip is in the smaller fingers of the left hand, but the thumb and forefinger add a sensitive, guiding touch that cannot be discounted. With the left thumb in this position on the shaft, the palm of the right fit over it in efficient fashion. The result is a grip that functions smoothly and as a single unit throughout.

A Scotsman bought two tickets for a golden ballot, in which the first and only prize was a five-hundred-pound car. When the draw was made the Scot won the car.

His friend rushed to his house to congratulate him. They found him with a long face and evidently dissatisfied.

"Why, what's the matter?" they inquired.

"Well," answered the new owner of the car, "it's that second ticket that's troubling me. Why I ever bought it I can't think."

COMMITTEE ORDERS DIRECTION RINGS

At a meeting of the City Council parks committee yesterday afternoon it was decided to paint direction rings on telephone posts, electric light and street lighting poles from Douglas Street and Pandora Avenue along Pandora Avenue to Quadra Street and Fisgard Avenue to Government to R P Butchart's Sunken gardens. Sidney and Patricia Bay. Rings will also be painted as follows along Douglas Street and Gorge Road pointing to the Island Highway.

Members of the committee agreed to ask the Council to place a stop sign near the wading pool off Douglas Street in Beacon Hill Park. Few Stocks Gain Quiet Strength On Wall Street

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP).—An assortment of cheering earnings statements and pleasing dividend declarations imparted quiet strength to individual stocks in today's market, although many issues were neglected.

The list exhibited hesitancy at the start. Light bidding then began to appear and, at the best, selective gains ranged from fractions to a point or so. Plus and minus signs were pretty well divided at the close.

The Associated Press average of sixty stocks emerged with an advance of .1 of a point at 41.1, against a decline yesterday of .3. Dealings were moderately lively at intervals but slowed after midday. Transactions totaled 559,730 shares, compared with 478,800 the day before.

U.S. Steel came out with a gain of 1-2 and, after the close, directors announced third quarter profits of $3.21 a share in the face of large provisions for taxes. Net in the June quarter was $2.12 and $3.07 in the September quarter last year. Results were about in line with Wall Street expectations.

Among stocks Atlantic Refining made a new 1941 top. Westinghouse, down at a new year's low in the morning, came back for a net gain of 7-8. On the rising side were Atlantic Coast Line, N.Y. Central, Great Northern, Santa Fe, Youngstown Sheet, Goodrich, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Kennecott, Eastman Kodak, Texas Corp., Pepsi-Cola, Standard Oil of Indiana and Savage Arms.

Western Union and Postal Telegraph preferred were up 3-4 and 1, respectively, as the Senate interstate commerce committee approved merger of these telegraph systems.

WHY A SPECIAL TREATMENT MAY FAIL

The fact that one research physician reports success in treating an ailment by a new or special method and another research physician, of equal standing, reports failure in treating the same type of case by this method, causes no surprise to the average physician today. He realizes that both physicians are quite sincere in their experiments and their reports.

Why should one physician get good results by the use of a special method and the other poor results in the treatment of a certain ailment—arthritis, stomach ulcer, catarrh, deafness or others?

The reason is that quite often the patient may have another condition present that interferes with the special treatment. For instance, treatment of arthritis by use of massive doses of vitamin D may give excellent results in one who has had his infected teeth or tonsils removed a couple of years before, and fail to give results in a case where infected teeth and tonsils had been removed just three months before special treatment was given. In this case, then, there would still be enough poison in the system to interfere with the action of the massive doses of vitamin D.

The fact that X-ray treatment of sinus and ear infection has helped many cases of hard of hearing has been amply proven, yet many X-ray and ear specialists report little or no success by this method. That the "dose" of X-rays and the number of times it is given and that some underlying condition may be present, may be the explanation of the failure to obtain results by X-rays.

Since Drs. J. C. Rommel and T. C. Davis, Philadelphia, reported their success in the treatment of thirty-three cases of chronic deafness and twenty-eight cases of ringing ears and head noises by use of prostigmin, successes and failures by this method are being reported from various parts of the country.

In both their first and second reports on this method of treatment, Drs. Rommel and Davis stress the importance of treating any local disorders of ear, nose and throat, and also building up and maintaining the general health of the patient.

It can readily be seen that trying to treat one ailment by a method directed at this one ailment can fail to give results if another condition present is lowering the patient's resistance.

LOVE WILL COME AGAIN

CHAPTER LVI

After Curt had gone April cried heart-brokenly for awhile, because of the gallant way in which he had kissed her gently on the top of the head and begged her not to think of him. The only thing that mattered was that she get well, and find happiness again. Perhaps she might [illegible] Whatever happened, it would make no difference in their friendship. He would understand.

Finally April got a hold on her emotions and dried her tears. Then she asked Hyacinthe to bathe her face and change her bed jacket and comb her sleek black hair. Afterward she made her face up carefully, trying to hide all traces of her tears, and asked Hyacinthe to go across the street and see if Hill was in his room. She wanted to talk with him.

Hyacinthe went reluctantly, because she was still holding a grudge against the former master of the house, even though she was impressed by the fact he was responsible for her salary every week.

Hill came back with the old colored woman. It was the first time April had ever sent for him, and he was alarmed that something might be wrong.

"Is everything all right, darling?" he sat down beside her, his face strained. "You're looking like a million dollars."

April reached for his hand, struggling against the lump in her throat. She must not weep, she told herself sternly. Hill had always despised tears, and been proud of the fact that she had never been the crying type.

Hill was surprised at April's display of affection when she gripped his hand tightly. He leaned toward her, yearning in his blue eyes, waiting for her to speak.

"Hill," she said in a little voice, "why didn't you want me to know about all the things you've done for me? That you were paying all my hospital bills and taking care of the expenses of the house?"

Hill's face colored. "Who told you? I thought I told Gay and Cherry they weren't to say anything. It must have been Hyacinthe."

April shook her head. "It was Curt De Witt who told me this afternoon, when I tried to give him the credit. He told me everything."

"Oh," Hill said shortly. "He did. Well, I'm sorry. He might have minded his own business."

April smiled at Hill's outburst. "Tell me," she looked at him out of wide grey eyes questioningly, "why did you do it, Hill? Why did you sell Hillcrest, the only thing you cared for in all the world and give the money to the hospital?"

Hill's blue eyes clouded. "You can ask that, April? What could Hillcrest mean to me when you were lying in the hospital? When I thought you were dying? Oh, my darling! Don't you understand?"

April's heart leaped. "You—were sorry for me. It was pity, wasn't it?"

"Pity?" Hill buried his face in her pillow. "Oh, April stop torturing me. You must know how much I love you. Oh, Mommy, please be a little more kind!"

April's arms cradled his head, and she said with a little sob, "Oh, darling, that's what I wanted you to say. That you love me. Oh, Hill, I've died to hear you say you loved me just once more."

Hill's lips sought hers hungrily, and he kissed her over and over again, his tears mingling with hers as he held her close to his fast-beating heart. After a long time April pulled away, sinking back on to her pillows, exhausted with the sweet pain of Hill's crushing arms and lips.

"Darling," Hill told her penitently, "I'm sorry. I lost my head. I've tired you. Forgive me."

April said happily, "Oh, Hill, as if you had to apologize for kissing me, when I've wanted you to so terribly."

"Did you, sweet?" he smiled at her in the old way she loved. "Have you missed me, too?"

She closed her eyes. "Oh, Hill! If I'd known what it was like to try to live without you, I would never have broken up our home. But it's all for the best—now."

"All for the best?" Hill's grip on her hand tightened. "What do you mean, darling?"

"Now that I'm as I am, I would want you to be free," she said with a little sob. "I couldn't tie you down to a cripple."

"Oh, God," Hill choked, "don't say that, April. Do you think it matters to me? Oh, sweetheart, not the way I love you! All I ask in this life is that you marry me again and let me take care of you and Kenny."

April cried, her heart breaking. "Oh, Hill, don't ask that of me. I can't marry you and chain you for the rest of your life to an invalid. Suppose I never do walk again. Oh, no, no! I love you too much."

Hill said, his face ashen: "If you love me enough, you'll marry me. I can't live without you, without knowing you are my wife again. I want to be here where I can take care of you. Where I can be with my son. You're mine. I can't live without you any longer."

COURT FINES MEN IN GASOLINE CASE

For stealing gasoline from the car of J. L. Tickner last Friday, George Newman, Robert Colman and Wilber McGee were each fined $50 yesterday in the city police court by Magistrate Henry C. Hall.

His Honor commented: "It seems extraordinary that three young men like yourselves should for a trivial amount of gasoline take steps to place yourselves in this position and endanger your jobs and label yourselves untrustworthy."

Newman received a suspended sentence for breaking, entering and committing theft by day in the house of Lin Way on Millstream Road on October 18, on the understanding that he posted a bond of $250 to be of good behavior for six months. McGee also received a suspended sentence for unlawfully retaining blasting caps and fuse stolen from J. E. Painter & Sons, provided that he also posted a $250 bond.

PLAN HOUSING IN ESQUIMALT

Seventy-Five Homes for Shipwrights to Be Built by Government Agency

To house workers in Esquimalt's shipyards, Wartime Housing, Limited, will erect seventy-five homes [illegible] ber which should be sufficient to meet the needs of the present shipbuilding programme, J. M. Pigott, president of Wartime Housing, Limited, said in an interview at the Empress Hotel last night.

"Much thought," Mr. Pigott said, "has been given to the designs and color schemes of these houses." Rental charges had not yet been fixed, and these must take into consideration the capital invested and the needs of the market the housing scheme serves.

Mr. Pigott spoke appreciatively of the co-operation given his organization by the Esquimalt municipal council. Wherever the houses have been erected elsewhere in Canada—and they have been provided in thirty or forty centres already—they have met with an enthusiastic reception. In designing them, Wartime Housing, Limited, had the advantage of advice from a committee of the Royal Architectural Institute.

His corporation, Mr. Pigott said, was building 500 houses for workers in Windsor and 1,000 for those in Halifax. Because of a previous lack of housing accommodation, there was a high turnover of labor in the shipbuilding industry.

SHORTAGE OF HOUSES

The entire Dominion is suffering from a shortage of housing, Mr. Pigott said. "People are more prosperous. Families spread out, and the marriage rate is up. Apart altogether from the war, we run into a social housing shortage.

"This is a social rather than a war problem. Several municipalities have asked for social housing projects whether or not they had war contracts."

In selecting sites for housing projects, Wartime Housing, Limited, requires them to be reasonably near industries. There are practically no suitable sites available now in cities such as Halifax and Kingston. Ottawa, Mr. Pigott said, faces an exceptionally severe shortage of housing and Wartime Housing may have to build accommodations for women civil servants upon request from the appropriate Governmental authority.

Mr. Pigott said that the volume of construction in Canada had fallen off, that there was a plentiful supply of building tradesmen available. A good deal of building for the Commonwealth Air Training Plan has "eased off." New construction projects must be licensed, and there are priorities and controls over metals and other building essentials which retard building activity upon everything but wartime undertakings.

INSPECTS SITE HERE

To serve as president of Wartime Housing, Limited, Mr. Pigott has relinquished for the duration of the war his duties as president of the Pigott Construction Co., Hamilton. He arrived in Victoria yesterday morning to inspect the site of the Colville Road housing project, and was accompanied by J. Y. McCarter, supervising architect, and N. B. Robinson, representative of Wartime Housing, Limited, in Vancouver.

Tenders for the Esquimalt undertaking close today, and when a contract is awarded the work will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible.

Mr. Pigott, who represents the construction industry upon the National Labor Supply Council, Ottawa, is also a member of the executive committee, National Advisory Committee for Children from Overseas, but this group is inactive, since no refugee children are meantime being sent to Canada from Great Britain, he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Pigott left Victoria last night en route to Toronto. A local committee, of which Major H. Cuthbert Holmes and E. W. McMullen are members, will act as a board of directors and appoint an administrator to manage the housing project at Esquimalt.

GEESE ARRIVE OFF SCHEDULE

Late in Arriving at Winter Quarters at Mouth of Mississippi

PILOTTOWN, La., Oct. 28 (AP).—For the first time in years the advance convoys of snow, blue, white and Canadian geese arriving at the Delta National Wildlife Refuge here, their Winter feeding grounds, are off schedule and the Lunar beam they almost unfailingly follow.

The weather man can be blamed, because the unseasonably warm weather both here and up the Mississippi watershed has confused the instincts of the big honkers which for years have been gliding into their reserve at the mouth of the Mississippi River here by the light of October's big silvery moon.

But the last full moon was October 12, and the geese began coming in only over the week-end at the rate of about 100,000 daily. A half million will arrive before another Saturday, to be followed by at least that many ducks which always drift in a little later.

IN POOR SHAPE

Two hurricanes which swept past the Mississippi's mouth in September have left the vast 100,000-acre Federal "duck hotel" feeding grounds in moderate to poor shape, according to John Kilby, director of the Federal Biological Survey's preserve.

An east wind that held salt water in the marsh for several weeks afterward, damaged the goose grass, duck potatoes, duck moss and banana water lilies on which the migratory fowl contentedly feed until March.

The preserve here is the Winter stop-over for the majority of the million or more fowl, but only a way-stop for some varieties of ducks and the white-fronted geese which stay around until about Christmas, then noisily shove off for Mexico, Central America and Panama, a full ten thousand miles from their Summer nesting grounds in the Arctic Circle above the Canadian mainland.

COLONEL MACINTOSH THANKS SUPPORTERS

Lieutenant-Colonel Macgregor Macintosh, Saanich candidate in the recent provincial election, voiced his thanks for support given him and good work done during the campaign, at a meeting of Wards 1, 2, 4 and 7 of the Saanich Conservative Association, held Monday night at the home of Mrs. F. W. Davey, Austin Avenue.

The future of the Saanich Conservative Association was discussed and the annual meeting was called for November 17. It was decided that the association should take a more active part in the life of the community and that social evenings should be held throughout the coming year.

During the evening a presentation was made to Mrs. Macintosh, on behalf of the Saanich Conservative Association, by Mrs. H. Giles, secretary of the association.

PREDICTS MORE TOURISTS HERE

Increase Next Year, "If We Can Handle Them," Says George I. Warren

Victoria will have an even bigger tourist business next year "if we can handle it."

This is the confident prediction of George I. Warren, commissioner of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, who has just returned from a 4,600-mile motor-trip through the states of Washington, Oregon and California, where he attended six major tourist and travel association conferences. During his trip, Mr. Warren delivered a total of thirteen talks on Canada and the war, and on United States-Canadian relationships, to an aggregate of more than 2,000 people. He also made one radio address.

At a meeting of the Publicity Bureau directorate yesterday, Mr. Warren reported that the main topic of all conversation and activity in the United States today is national defence, and that the need of proper holiday relaxation for defence workers amid natural surroundings was being stressed.

This, he said, would likely have a favorable effect on British Columbia tourist business. Motions congratulating Mr. Warren on his successful trip were proposed by Harold Husband, on behalf of the Publicity Bureau, and by E. Rowebottom, on behalf of the Provincial Government.

In a letter from D. K. Kennedy, city building inspector, it was announced that the next Pacific Coast building officials' conference, an outstanding annual meeting of building leaders throughout the country, would be held September 8-11, 1942, in the Empress Hotel. Alderman B. J. Gadsden reported to the bureau on the City Council's action in painting telephone poles and painting of rings on poles in the city for the tourists.

FORMER STARS ARE COACHING

Several National Hockey League Veterans Training Clubs

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (CP).—An expanded American Hockey League opens a new season tomorrow night with one of the most colorful coaching staffs in the game expected to enhance the circuit's already strong drawing power.

Two former hockey greats are new to the league this season—Ching Johnson of New York Ranger fame, and Cooney Weiland, mainstay of Boston Bruin attacks for years. They join such stars as Eddie Shore, Springfield coach; the Cook brothers, Bill and Bun; Tiny Thompson and Larry Aurie.

Johnson will pilot Washington Ulines, new addition to the A.H.L. this year, while Weiland takes over Hershey Bears. With Johnson piloting the team, and occasionally taking the ice himself, the Ulines are expected to be a threat in their first season.

Another new coach this season is Danny Cox, who comes from Seattle. Cox takes over Philadelphia Rockets, successors to last year's Ramblers. A new club with new backing and new players, Philadelphia is an uncertain factor in this year's campaign.

With such former stars in charge of the coaching duties and making as many appearances in action as their aging frames will allow, league directors hope to whet crowd appeal. Last year the A.H.L. catered to more than 1,500,000 fans and drew some $1,000,000 at the gate.

Russian Aid Fund Grows With Speed

LONDON, Oct. 28 (CP).—Mrs. Winston Churchill said in a broadcast tonight her aid-for-Russia fund has received £370,000 (about $1,646,000) in "only twelve days," the British Broadcasting Corporation reported. The objective is £1,000,000.

The wife of the British Prime Minister said German aggression had caused the Russian people "great suffering."

"Never in the history of mankind has so much havoc been wrought in so short a time," she said.

FORMER MAYOR OF PRINCE RUPERT DIES

VANCOUVER, Oct. 28 (CP).—Funeral services will be held in Prince Rupert for Michael P. McCaffery, sixty-nine, well-known executive in the British Columbia fishing industry and former mayor of Prince Rupert, who died in hospital here Monday.

Mr. McCaffery went to Prince Rupert in 1909 and was mayor there from 1914 to 1916. He played an important role in organizing the Northern Fishermen's Cold Storage Company, a co-operative organization of which he was president. A son, Michael, Jr., is serving with Canadian army forces at Victoria.

He was born in Quebec City, came to Victoria in 1920 and attended the Collegiate School and Victoria College. Later he returned to Winnipeg and was employed with James Richardson & Sons' bond department. He joined the R.C.A.F. in June, 1940, and was given his wings last April. He landed in England in August, and was reported to have been with the Coastal Command in Scotland. An aunt, Mrs. E. E. Code, resides at 607 Linden Avenue.

THIRTEEN TO GO TO POST

Eligibles Announced for Saturday's $2,500 Handicap in South

SAN BRUNO, Cal., Oct. 28—Headed by Northern California's newest thoroughbred thunderbolt, Samborombon, thirteen horses today were nominated for the $2,500 added Yerba Buena Handicap, Saturday. This six-furlong fixture will bring out the best sprint field of the Fall season and will serve to introduce several recent Eastern arrivals.

Although the weather was clearing today, the Earl Beezley camp was not worried about the probable condition of the track for Samborombon, the Argentine ace. "He doesn't have to carry a track in his hip pocket," remarked Joey Ineralone, the former riding star, who exercises him.

The complete list of nominations, with owners, follow: Samborombon, Beezley and Cohen; Talked About, Mrs. J. P. Waters; Bucking, A. K. Weast; General Mowlee, Mrs. Clyde Phillips; Lassator, W. G. McCarty; Last Gold, Smart and Baker; Breeks, Mrs. P. Venturi; Stalking, Double H Ranch; Buckhorn Creek, N. S. McCarthy; Don Lin II, Edgemont Stable; Urge Me, U. H. Plavin; Gold Pomp, Loma Rica Rancho; Equistar, A. W. Weast.

Bucking, a stakes winner on the Chicago circuit, owned by A. K. Weast, and Mrs. J. R. Upton's Certainty, a crack California-bred sprinter, arrived today from Chicago.

R. A. Coward, Texas furfman, today nominated Marriage and Hypocrite for the $15,000 Marchbank Handicap, November 22. Both of these stars are now at Empire City, New York, with the Coward string.

Marriage has won nine out of his last fifteen starts, beginning the year in sensational style by winning eight straight. Hypocrite has captured six out of eleven starts.

Both of these horses, expected here within two weeks, will rank in the forefront of contention for the mile-and-an-eighth classic.

Earl Beezley today purchased Gold Teddy from E. C. A. Berger at private terms.

VICTORIA DOGS WIN

Canada was represented at the all-breed championship dog show held this week at the Seattle Kennel Club in the Sound City. Mrs. N. W. Mellish, 1632 Hollywood Crescent, carried off several honors with her display of Scottish terriers. Heatherbelle Bluebelle's Sally won a cup, a winners' prize and first award as the best female Scotty in the show, while Heatherbelle Thistle's Kirsty won a trophy, a special prize and first prize as a puppy. Champion Heatherbelle Lady Scott and champion Heatherbelle Bonnie Dundee took the honors as the only Canadian-owned champions in the parade. About 350 dogs were entered in the various classes.

CHEST GROUP BEGINS WORK

Canvassers of Business Division Hear Encouraging Reports at Rally

Indications point to a readiness on the part of Victorians to support social welfare agencies here through contributions to the Community Chest campaign, [illegible] vassers in the business division of the organization were told at a rally in Spencer's dining-room Tuesday night.

They joined others already in the field today and left the women's group, which will make the house-to-house appeal starting Monday, the only section not yet operating.

F. E. Winslow, president of the chest organization, stated subscriptions received to date were highly encouraging. He reminded the workers business firms were allowed a deduction of 5 per cent for charities from any excess profit taxes such concerns would have to pay the Government, and suggested canvassers draw that to the attention of those who would fall in that category.

EXCELLENT WORK

W. B. D. Pemberton, chairman of the campaign, remarked on the excellent work being done by the agencies the chest supports and urged workers to familiarize themselves with the particular activities of the twenty-two organizations which receive assistance.

Frank Paulding spoke of the acceptance of the community chest idea as the most scientific method of raising funds for such purposes. He instanced collections of $90,400.-000 by 592 chests throughout North America this year to illustrate his point.

Expenses of the campaign were merely 2.2 per cent and administration cost less than 3.5 per cent, he said.

PLEDGES HONORED

Mr. Paulding outlined the machinery of the campaign, gave groups their instructions and stressed the value of pledges, saying 98 per cent were honored in the city last year.

Miss Dorothy Yates, general secretary of the Family Welfare Association, explained the work of some of the services on which the money was spent.

The work of the Children's Aid Society, the Family Welfare Association and the Victorian Order of Nurses during wartime entailed service beyond that of previous years, she said, giving details of certain cases to illustrate her point.

"We are doing a better job than before because we no longer have to go out after funds," she said, as she thanked the chest organization for its great assistance.

Woolens Are Received for Men in Service

Word has been received by the Royal Naval War Comforts Depot of Victoria, B.C. (Canada) of the safe arrival in England of two more cases of woolen comforts sent by them. Miss D. K. Ingleby, supervisor of comforts at the headquarters of the Missions to Seamen, London, received the following comforts as her portion of the shipment: Sixty pairs of socks, forty pairs of seaboot stockings, ten pairs of gloves, thirty pairs of Mellor gloves, nine Indian sweaters, twelve scarves and one pullover, and in acknowledgment thereof wrote on September 22:

"Will you please give our very best thanks to the knitters and glove makers whose untiring work has provided this further supply of your excellent woolies, and tell them that their gifts are even more welcome than ever now, as the Winter will soon be here, and it has been very difficult lately to keep up supplies."

The remainder of the shipment was received by the Incorporated Soldiers, Sailors and Airmen's Help Society, and the assistant secretary for that organization, Commander J. H. Drummond, in a letter dated September 12, says, in part:

"Many thanks for your letter enclosing particulars of cases numbered seventeen and eighteen which I've been duly received and, for which I am most grateful.

Your Health and Your Weight

PRIDE IN APPEARANCE IS A BIG FACTOR IN CAUSING OVERWEIGHTS TO REDUCE

By JAS. W. BARTON, M.D.

For years, parents and physicians tried to point out to girls, sixteen to twenty years of age, the dangers of "slimming"—keeping down their weight. They were shown statistics which told in dramatic language that in the fight against tuberculosis, physicians were winning the fight in every age except in girls from sixteen to twenty years of age; the age when these young women would be thinking of marriage and motherhood.

It was when Florenz Ziegfield announced that he would never again have "thin" girls in his shows that these girls were willing to allow themselves to attain the grace of figure that comes naturally at this age.

In other words, it is for "appearance," not health's sake that these young women stopped "slimming," stopped trying to have a boyish figure. All the warnings of physicians and parents as to the dangers of keeping underweight fell on deaf ears. It was only when girls with natural "curves" were picked by Ziegfield as being more attractive, more beautiful, that being skinny lost its popularity.

Now, just as physicians have been advising that thinness should be avoided under the age of thirty, so have they been advising that fatness, overweight, should be avoided after the age of thirty. They point out that overweight may cause congestion of the liver, biliousness, formation of gall stones. It is a forerunner of diabetes, high blood pressure (hardening of the arteries), heart disease, and apoplexy (stroke). The overweight is not as good a risk when operation must be performed as one of normal weight. Overweight hastens old age, and, finally, overweight lessens one's expectation of life 1 per cent for each pound of overweight after the age of thirty. Recently surgeons who, in suitable cases, use the injection method for curing hernia, will not use this method in those who have excess fat over abdomen.

As we think of all the above dangers and disadvantages of overweight, we would expect that once they were pointed out to overweights, they would go on a reducing diet at once.

As a matter of fact, these arguments have not had any more weight with adults than the arguments against slimming had with teen-age girls. But the same arguments—beauty, attractiveness—are having more effect, and overweight women and men also are more willing to go on a reducing diet or take exercise in order to get back their normal figure. To have the figure of their youth is worth working for, more worth working for, to them, than escaping the dangers of overweight.

A recent newspaper story tells of a young woman of twenty, in need of one more young man to fill up her party, saying to the other members of the group, "I am asking Bill Blank to come. He is past thirty but he has not got fat or "settled" looking so he will look all right with the rest of us."

An overweight woman, or man, having lost the figure of their youth, is not considered young even if they are still young in years.

A woman passing a full length mirror in the home of a friend was astonished when she realized that the huge shapeless object in the mirror was herself. Remembering her slim figure of but three years previous, she determined she would regain that figure. By cutting down her food and resting less, she regained her youthful figure in a few months. As a matter of fact, she was a physician and knew the dangers of overweight but it was her woman's pride in appearance, not health considerations, that made her reduce her weight.

It is now estimated that four out of every five who reduce do so because of the effect of their overweight on their appearance rather than from any consideration of avoiding illness, living a buoyant life, and living many years longer.
